In a rare and deeply insightful opportunity, our Editor-In-Chief, Gene Ho, was able to sit at the Mensa Libertatis to interview none other than the much-accomplished Scott McKay.

So, there should be no surprise then that there is much talk in the New Age community of "The Cleansing". Instead of teaching that the Body of Christ will be Raptured prior to the start of The Day of The LORD, as many Christians believe, New Agers believe in a reverse rapture of sorts.

Rio Grande Valley residents call it the "Valley of Death" because it has become a tragic routine for many ranch owners who find human remains or bodies on their properties.

We sure are hearing a lot about something people are calling the "New World Order." I wonder if those researching or studying this subject would be able to see that the current proposed iteration of a New World Order could be a decoy.

If you're new to George, don't worry. I'll be taking you on a journey through time. In the inaugural issue of GO, George Online, I'm throwing it back to introduce you to the OG. That is, the "original GEORGE."

It's no secret that nature as well as culture have defined femininity since the beginning of time. Nature has had the upper hand, of course, as most woman's physical feminine attributes cannot be denied. However, the psychological characteristics of femininity along with the physical characteristics are currently being reshaped by today's culture.

Why has so many want to flee a Communist State and find freedom and opportunities in other parts of the world, such as America? Read one man's story of freedom.

In less than eight years, NYC returned to the unsafe, crime-infested urban area of the 70s and 80s. People left. Jobs disappeared. The pandemic was badly handled. Riots broke out in the name of justice.

Hello GEORGE.

It's been a long time. We see that you are all grown up. Way back when... you were just a boy. A boy filled with dreams. And you were a boy that changed the world. You entertained. You educated. You enthralled us with your encoded messages that kept us glued to your vision all these years.

Over the years, people have collected your issues. People have poured over your written words to see your wisdom; to seek for hidden meanings that you so playfully set before us like a game of hide and seek. So, it's good to see you again.

But everyone wants to know, "Why now? Why are you back?" The ruth is? We know you never left. You were growing up. And so was the rest of AMERICA.

But now you are a man. And the timing couldn't be more perfect to see you again.

See... we need you more than ever right now.

America needs to be united and NOT divided any longer. And I know you will do just that.

America needs to stop hating each other. There used to be a glorious time when we could simply argue. If I felt one way and another person felt the opposite? We would debate. We would argue. And in the end, we would agree to disagree. And then we would all have a beer together.

But somewhere along the way disagreements turned to hate. And in some cases, hate turned to violence.

All this needs to stop.

George, I know you will show the way. We know you will show the way. You are brilliant in this. We know you can lead America—NOT by teaching us—but by showing us. Show us who is making a difference in America; regardless if they are on the left or the right.

George? Put a face on the Conservatives on the right and the Liberals on the left. Show us who they Really are. Think I know you will do. And maybe their point of view will change people. Or maybe not.

If I had to guess? It's NOT going to change much. But that doesn't matter. I know convincing people to change their politics isn't your goal.

But? But the understanding of each other might do JUST ENOUGH for us to heal. America needs to heal. We need to stop hating. We need to stop hating each other just because we hold different perspectives.

Show us and reintroduce us to each other. Be the man in the middle that make us united again.

George... I know you will lead the way in doing so. And while you're doing so? Entertain us. Make us laugh. And make us cry.

So, welcome back, GEORGE.

WE'RE BACK!

PEACE ON EARTH

Down through the ages Man has longed for peace.

And since the answer has never been found. Wars will never cease.

The Bible tells about a Special King.
None will be worthy of wearing His Crown.

And even the mention of His Name
Every knee will surely bow down.

Only He has the answers for a broken world. And the power to perform the cure.

So, He is the One that will bring peace on Earth.

A peace that will forever endure!

SCOTT MCKAY

In a rare and deeply insightful opportunity, our Editor-In-Chief, Gene Ho, was able to sit at the Mensa Libertatis with none other than the much-accomplished Scotty McKay.

by Henry Archer

Not often are people able to connect and communicate with thousands and thousands of listeners and maintain the sense of humility required of true patriotism. We are happy to present to you our experience with just such a person. In a rare and deeply insightful opportunity, our Editor-In-Chief, Gene Ho, was able to sit at the Mensa Libertatis with none other than the much-accomplished Scott McKay. As a social media influencer, public speaker, and owner/operator of the powerful website Patriotstreetfighter.com, Scott has taken up a mantle that few are willing to even acknowledge ... that of Truth and Liberty, no matter the cost.

The man certainly knows how to make an entrance ... when on the road, Scott commands the stage from the first instant as he appears wielding a battle axe in his right hand, his firearm safely holstered to his belt, and AC/DC thundering in the tympanis of the crowds' eardrums.

Scott is busy traveling our great nation on his 'Advancing the Forkin' Line' tour, but he was kind enough to let us know a little about how he sees the state of things and what real patriots like you can do to defend our God-Given liberties. He is a lifelong entrepreneur, but Scott dedicated a substantial portion of his life working within the halls of politics. Carrying with him the inspiration to make our country better than it has ever been, Scott lit out to the territories and shouldered various political assignments including grunt worker, campaign manager, campaign consultant, and Los Angeles GOP Committee member.

CYRUS REPORT

Politics Infused with A Biblical Perspective
by Cyrus Leone

Everything To Keep Americans Well Informed
When The Established Media Will Not.

Take note, there is NOWHERE in scripture that says that the Great Tribulation, Daniel's Prophesied 70th Week, begins immediately following the Rapture.

I also believe that the knowledge of the timing of the Harpazo, The Rapture, of the Body of Christ, has on it a Spiritual Padlock of sorts. This is NOT, so much, to keep us from knowing the time of our "Blessed Hope", Titus 2:13, as it is to keep Satan from being able to plan for it.

So, there should be no surprise then that there is much talk in the New Age community of "The Cleansing". Instead of teaching that the Body of Christ will be Raptured prior to the start of The Day of The LORD, as many Christians believe, New Ager's believe in a reverse rapture of sorts.

New Ager's, channeling their "masters" (demons), call it the "cleansing," and New Age literature describes it as a time when all the "wicked" people of the world, including Christians and others who don't go along with the coming New Age occultism, will be removed to another dimension and be destroyed.

"Prepare yourselves," wrote New Ager Aleuti Francesca, "for the day now closely approaches and those who are not so prepared must vanish from the face of this your Earth. Those who align themselves with the things of the Old must surely be destroyed with that age of decay and darkness."

The "cleansing" teaching is an obvious tactic of Satan who will want an excuse for The Rapture of The Body of Christ after the event takes place, in order to quell enormous and out of control public hysteria. The LORD God wants Satan to be completely fooled by the event of the Harpazo, The Rapture, just like he was fooled by the unfolding and revealing, to the Apostle Paul (and NOT the 12), of The Mystery, The Body of Christ, after Our LORD's Resurrection and ascension.

"But we speak the wisdom of God in a Mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory, Which NONE of the Principalities of this world knew: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory" 1 Corinthians 2:7-8 , and then, "And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in it" Colossians 2:15

Back to Some Food for Thought on the Rapture. Once again, the time between Enoch's Harpazo/Rapture and the start, the first day, of the Flood is 531 years According to The Bible in the Book of Genesis. So, could that be an indication of the time between the Rapture and the Return of the LORD to the Earth. And again, there is NO WHERE in scripture that says that the Great Tribulation begins immediately following the Harpazo, the Rapture.

So, there should be no surprise then that there is much talk in the New Age community of “The Cleansing

So let's see. The Average lifespan for the Antediluvian person was 929 years, also according to The Bible in the Book of Genesis, (That's Adam to Noah, not including Abel or Enoch). Then, according to the Psalms (Psalm 90:10), man's lifespan is three score and ten years (70 years.)

Since we know the length of time between Enoch's Rapture and the First Day of The Flood Judgment (531 years), and we know the average Antediluvian lifespan, and we also know what the Bible says is the lifespan of man today, we can use a little of that algebra from school, we thought we didn't need to learn, to find out what would likely be the comparative span of time between the Harpazo, The Rapture of the Body of Christ, and the Day that the LORD returns to the Earth for the Final Conflict.

TOMOKO

First Big In Japan and now completely MAGA

A completely different portrait of a modern-day Madame Butterfly with a happier ending.
by Vicky Richter

Who has not met her at one of the big freedom and truth events and not been drawn to her beautiful beaming smile. Tomoko Jones is an icon at events like the Reawakening Tour or CPAC events. Who is this Japanese beauty that reminds every on looker of Madame Butterfly from Giacomo Puccini's opera. GEORGE had the chance to get to know Tomoko better and further enchanted by her in an interview.

GEORGE: What was it like growing up in Japan?

Tomoko Jones (TJ): I had a happy childhood. Life in Japan was easy. My father was a cruise ship captain, often gone for weeks at a time. The family was healthy, we lived comfortably. My childhood was mostly in the Tokyo area. It was easy to get around with the extensive train system. With little crime even young children would travel alone by train. There were great restaurants, and much to see and do. I often traveled with friends to the mountains for snowboarding on weekends.

I was popular in school; had friends I am still in touch with today. Higher education, while competitive, was very affordable. I studied English in college and eventually went onto a modeling career. I became a GT Race Queen, enjoying a brief period of celebrity before getting married and moving to America. It was a fun experience. I met interesting people and developed skills in communication with a diverse fan base.

GEORGE: How did you come to immigrate to the USA?

TJ: I married an American man, so the immigration process was easy. We met at the Semicon Japan trade show where I worked as a promotional model. He worked for a semi-conductor equipment company, where we worked together in his company's trade show booth. For several years we would get together when he was in Japan visiting customers. He was handsome, kind and eventually I fell in love with him. We married the 4th of September, then 9/11 happened.

The world had suddenly become crazy. My father worried about me moving to America, worried my English was not good enough. My mother worried I had not sufficient training to take care of my husband, and I worried that 9/11 would halt the immigration process but was able to get my green card one month later. I have lived in Austin, Texas ever since. My parents' concerns, not an issue.

GEORGE: What differences do you see in the two countries and their cultures?

TJ: Japanese and Americans are quite different. The Japanese people are more humble, more apologetic, more courteous, and tend to avoid confrontation. American friends suggested I not say I am sorry so often. Japanese people work hard, are highly organized and meticulous. I am sometimes frustrated by service provided by American workers. A Japanese worker would never forget to include ketchup with your French fries.

Everything in Japan is a process and there are rules. This can be annoying at times. In trying to resign from a job found out I could not resign by simply giving notice. There was a process to go through and had to continue working. That seems so odd to me now, but that is the Japanese way.

I never really felt restrictions on freedom living in Japan, but over the years I have come to see that the Japanese people are not as free as they may think. Some of which may be tradition but wonder if such traditions had been intentionally designed over the centuries to control the populace. One summer while visiting, I enrolled my daughter in a Japanese kindergarten. Each day when picked her up, the teacher would complain that my daughter refused to stand in a line and sing along with the other kids. I marveled at the ability of the teacher to get three-year old children to line up, stand at attention in cute little military style uniforms and sing together. Obedience and structured life of Japanese people is learned from an early age. You must follow the rules. A non-compliant three-year-old is not acceptable in Japan.

The Japanese love their country and will do whatever their government tells them to do, no matter how absurd. I have come to realize that the Japanese people learn from childhood to be compliant. When their government tells them to wear a mask, they do. When they are told to get vaccinated, they dutifully line up for the shot. Of course, all the same propaganda by mass media in Japan, we see here in America.

Tomoko as young child along with Chikako her mother attending Shichi-Go-San a traditional Japanese rite of passage and festival day for three-and seven year-old-girls. Event is held annual on November 15 to celebrate the growth and well-being of young boys and girls.

Making friends from across the border. Tomoko with Canadian couple attend the Freedom festival at Rochester, NY

Few Japanese question government mandates even when presented with facts that contradict the government narrative. I see this happening in America also, and it concerns me, but in Japan the population is under a spell. Citizens taught to care about society, not about the individual or individual freedoms that are so much more important to Americans. So, there is still hope for freedom in AMERICA.

GEORGE: How did you become so active in the freedom and truth movement in the U.S.?

TJ: It all started with Covid. People were getting sick and dying. Did not take long for doctors to figure out how to treat Covid. It was shocking to think these treatments were intentionally withheld by the government. Even more shocking that it was happening in concert all around the world. People were dying in hospitals and governments were allowing it to happen. Then came the masking, distancing, shutdowns, and for the first time felt I was no longer living in a free society. Our government was intentionally trying to kill us. Why were potentially lifesaving treatments not made available? Why was information about these treatments censored? Why were people allowed to die? Were hospitals killing people? Doing extensive research, I started to learn about the WEF, Bill Gates, Soros, and the Great Reset.

Then came the November 2020 elections, and the purpose of the pandemic became clear. Our country was under attack. On Jan 6, my daughter and I went to DC. It was reassuring to see so many people ready to rise. The country was not going down without a fight.

When the vaccines came, we learned very quickly they were dangerous and did not work. Yet our government continuously lied about the safety and efficacy; there was no longer any doubt the country, the world we know, and love was in trouble.

Even with all this happening, it seemed clear to me, so many people are complying. You could not talk to them without being labeled a conspiracy theorist. I felt a need to get involved, to be around people that knew more than I did about what was happening.

I started attending events and networking with people. I have learned so much about what is really going on. Now my plan now is to share the truth with the Japanese people.

GEORGE: Who were the most exciting people you met on your travels to major events of the freedom and truth movement?

FIRST "BIG IN JAPAN" and now completely "MAGA"

All the people I have met, have been exciting to meet. People at these events are full of energy, it is inspiring to me. Many have given me new hope, encouraged me and I have learned so much from so many. I love talking to people in person, it helps me understand what they are really saying and know they are truthful. The patriots I have met are amazing people, I enjoy spending time with them, and love their fighting spirit.

GEORGE: Why are the MAGA and America First movement so important to you?

I do not want to give up our freedom. I love Trump's America first policies. We need to give power back to the people. Current government is not working for the people anymore. I support candidates who will work for the people. I did not care about politics maybe a year ago. But now care very deeply. I attended fundraisers in Mar a Lago and Bedminster. I met political candidates and wonderful supporters. So many are new to politics as well. I believe these people will clean up corruption in our government, fix our election system, flush out the communists that have infiltrated our government agencies, schools, corporations, and undo horrible policies of the Biden administration that are destroying the country. Our November elections are so important.

GEORGE: What obstacles have you encountered in the freedom and truth movement and life in general in the United States?

One of the wonderful things about America is there are no obstacles. At least I have not encountered any, until Covid of course. As for the movement, the main obstacle is access to information. It is not that information is hard to find, but intentionally hidden from casual observers. Mainstream media feeds people limited information, only information the government wants you to know. If we consume only mainstream information, we will not know vaccines are bio-weapons, we will not know our elections are fraudulent, we would not know the extent of our economic collapse and think everything will be simply fine. My husband's business partner only listened to NPR radio in the morning, NPR cable news in the evening. My husband warned him of the dangers of the vaccines, he would not listen. NPR said they were safe, and everyone needed to get vaccinated. When the vaccines came out he was first in line. Last November the booster-shot killed him.

GEORGE: What about the freedom and truth movement in Japan? Are there similar movements there?

I am unsure, my focus has been here. I will be getting more involved in Japan in the months ahead. Japan has been in a perpetual state of mass formation for a long time, so it may be hopeless, but I need to try. So many Japanese people love Trump.

Meeting Dr. Zelenko, a physician, scientist, and activist for medical rights who touched the lives of millions of people. Some were saved as his role as a doctor, and even more were inspired by his words. His "Zelenko Protocol" saved millions and earned him a Nobel Prize nomination and the admiration of a U.S. President among other prominent world leaders.

Japan has always been somewhat of a closed society, and many disliked Abe's globalist views. I suppose their love for Trump stems from his America first policies and their longing for leaders in Japan to express the same for their country.

GEORGE: What would you like to see Americans do in terms of current economic and geopolitical situation?

I wish more people would pay attention to what is happening. There is so much going on and most people seem unaware or not care. Sure, they feel the pain of higher gas and food prices, but do not see or refuse to see the cause. We need to keep pushing, and I know so many patriots will stand strong and not give up.

We need a big win in November and in January the people need to stand with newly elected champions, dismantle the corrupt administrative state and prosecute those responsible for this nightmare.

VALLEY OF DEATH

This article contains disturbing images of human remains, be sure to observe age restriction.

RIO GRANDE VALLEY, TX

Rio Grande Valley residents call it the Valley of Death because has become a Brooks County Texas: a County forgotten by Washington.

The border crisis isn't just a problem in Texas border counties, it extends to Brooks County, 70 miles away, where Sheriff Urbino "Benny" Martinez and ranch owners like Dr. Mike Vickers must contend almost daily with the aftermath of the invasion by illegal immigrants into the United States.

Brooks County, a county located in the U.S. state of Texas, with a population of approximately 7,076 people. The county seat is Falfurrias. It is one of the poorest counties in Texas. Much of the county is made up of large ranches.

This county, despite the border with Mexico being 70 miles away, is one of the most used transit points for the thousands of illegal immigrants smuggled into the U.S. undetected and making their way through the Rio Grande Valley. Some illegals from the groups die trying to cross the valley, some from dehydration, and others are silenced for obstructing the group's passage through the valley. Children and women are left to die in the desert, many of them raped.

Sheriff Martinez and his deputies are trying to deal with the situation daily but with the lack of federal support and masses of people pouring into the county on a daily and weekly basis, it is almost impossible to do so.

One-Man Standing

County Sheriff Urbino "Benny" Martinez has one of the smallest budgets to do his job of protecting the residents of his county. Resources and manpower are lacking to deal with the situation of so many illegals. Martinez hasn't heard from Washington in a long time. Nightly chases, arrests of smugglers and illegal runners are mostly handled by one deputy. Night vision devices and bulletproof vests are procured and paid for by the police officers themselves.

How long have you been sheriff of Brooks County?

Sheriff Martinez: I've been the sheriff for Brooks County the last six years.

How many deputies do you have? How big is your county?

Sheriff Martinez: The county is 944 square miles. I usually operate with one deputy that handles that. But I do have a commander—and I'm including everyone here; the commander and the captain—one deputy that handles the calls themselves. I have a couple of CID guys. Let me see ... five, maybe six.

How many illegals do you encounter in a week, alive or dead? How many do you have to pursue? Are there some who find you?

Sheriff Martinez: Well, it varies based on actual interaction. We can interact with between 50 to 80. But you're talking about a week, so we're looking at anywhere between 80 and 100. What we do varies because sometimes we have bailouts and we only can apprehend maybe 2 possibly 3 out of the 20 who ran out of the truck, so it's hard to say. Actual contact ... it could be 3 versus 17 getaways. I would say anywhere between 80 to 100 in a week, which was your original question.

Does your staff have adequate and proper gear to serve in this situation, to fulfill their service and complete their job in a safe manner?

Sheriff Martinez: No, of course not. I'd probably need to at least double what I have. If I had between 15 and 20 boots on the ground, that would be much more efficient than what I have now. It would double the resources. As it is, we rely a lot on Border Patrol to help us. We also rely on state police and local city police because we simply don't have adequate resources.

Does your staff receive proper gear from the State, or do they have to purchase the proper gear themselves?

Sheriff Martinez: We get the gear as frequently as we can. Is the proper gear what they have? Yes. But does it get outdated? Yes. Do we have the funds to upgrade? No, so we rely on grants and other resources for them to get the gear that is needed.

Do you get adequate support from the federal government?

Sheriff Martinez: Well, the support we get from the federal government is simply grant monies to help Border Patrol, to be a force multiplier with Border Patrol. It's what those monies are for, right? Those are the only funds. We're lacking the monies the county lost.

It's been 10 years since we lost almost $700,000 on recovering bodies. We've been trying to recover those bodies and to no avail. It's just one of those things that we need to keep at until we get those funds back.

Valley of Death

Rio Grande Valley residents call it the Valley of Death because has become a tragic routine for many ranch owners to find human remains or bodies on their properties. One of the deputies' main duties has become to recover human remains and bodies from surrounding ranches and categorize them forensically as much as possible. Extra training has even been required for deputies to perform this task. Since the Biden Administration, the number of body discoveries has increased by 250 percent in 2021 compared to 2020.

What percentage of increase in dead bodies have you seen in the last 10 years?

Sheriff Martinez: How many have we seen in the last 10 years in person? Percentagewise, in the last 10 years? It's over 50, 60 percent, maybe more, because it varies. On average, we're at 80 percent. That's the average. At times, we'll see maybe 20, 30 even 80 percent above that. That's what we're seeing if you look at it percentagewise.

Why do some people call your valley "The Valley of Death"?

Sheriff Martinez: Yes, some people call it that because we've recovered over 900 dead since 2009. We've recovered 180 bodies in the last 20 months. That's why they call it 'Death Valley', because we're 70 miles north of the border and some just can't make it.

Why do some people call your valley "The Valley of Death"?

Sheriff Martinez: Yes, some people call it that because we've recovered over 900 dead since 2009. We've recovered 180 bodies in the last 20 months. That's why they call it 'Death Valley', because we're 70 miles north of the border and some just can't make it.

This morning we found a little girl that was left behind yesterday. We found her, she was still alive and once she received a bit of medical care, she did well. I say she did well because she's alive, so that's a good thing.

That's truly a good thing. Or she would have been another statistic for us.

Not only does the sheriff's team have to deal with the collateral damage of the border crisis, but ranchers live with this tragedy daily. Can you imagine what they face finding women and children left behind or their remains on their property ... it's heartbreaking.

Deceived and left alone by the government

Washington DC has been trying for months to convince citizens in the United States that the situation on the border is under control and that not a single American citizen has been negatively affected by this crisis. However, the fact is that many American citizens especially ranchers are being negatively affected.

Thousands of feet of fencing are damaged weekly and must be paid for by the landowners themselves, which can be $1000 to $2000 a month per ranch, in addition to the cost of lost, injured or killed livestock. Destroyed gates and stolen pick-up trucks are now part of the ranchers' daily routine. Not to forget the tragic loss of life.

Dr. Mike Vickers is one of the ranchers who must live with these problems.

To keep some control, he trained his German Shepherds to provide security for his property, they are trained to take illegals into custody and make sure they don't run away until the Border Patrol or Sheriff come to arrest them.

What is the size of your ranch?

Dr. M. Vickers: This ranch is 1000 acres

How many times in a week do you find illegals who have died on your property?

Dr. M. Vickers: Not weekly, but we have some. The ranch south of me is 110,000 acres and the one north is over 48,000 acres, so collectively there are a lot.

How many unaccompanied children do you find?

Dr. M. Vickers: We find a lot of unaccompanied children

Your German Shepherds are a huge help in keeping your property safe - how many criminal illegals would you say they've helped put in custody?

Dr. M. Vickers: The dogs have helped with over 800 illegals, now in custody, just in our house pastures.

How high are your monthly costs to rebuild the fences around YOUR property?

Dr. M. Vickers: Fence repairs run $1000 to $2000 per month.

Do you get any support from the federal government?

Dr. M. Vickers: None. No financial support from State or Federal government

No longer the America that once was The mainstream media and federal government talk about the best America in a long time, not everyone sees it in Brooks County.

Do you think the U.S. has changed since this border crisis got out of control?

Sheriff Martinez: Absolutely changed. Some people might not admit or talk about it, but yeah, of course it's changed. Anytime you see the influx as it is, as you're coming in, your infrastructure is going to hurt because the infrastructure is not built to that. You can't build that fast to meet up the expectations of those coming in. So, it has absolutely changed.

It's one of those issues that if you don't have the infrastructure to support it, you're going to see a change; the volume, the medical care, the resources that you need, your community service resources, et cetera, et cetera. Even the school are going to have to improvise for that also. Housing. Everything that anyone, any family member goes through, it's just been quadrupled or more just because of the influx of people.

Do you feel safe on YOUR property?

Dr. M. Vickers: Only feel safe when well-armed.

Do you think the border crisis is more an invasion than a crisis?

Sheriff Martinez: At this point, you can probably call it that simply because the volume of people coming in. There's too many of them. It goes back to what I said earlier. Not enough resources to house all of them or medical resources to assist in their care. Anything that we use as a norm, is not a norm for them. That must be sped up, put in the front row so they can be treated and be taken care of, not only in terms of education, but also in terms of wellness and health issues. It's just too overwhelming right now to say that we have everything in place to take care of them.

Do you think the open border policy is a betrayal to the American people?

Dr. M. Vickers: Open Borders are a huge betrayal to all Americans.

NEW WORLD ORDER OR DECOY?

by Cyrus Leone

W e sure are hearing a lot about something people are calling the “New World Order”. I wonder if those researching or studying this subject would be able to see that the current proposed iteration of a New World Order could be a decoy.

There is so much information available concerning a “deep state” with their globalist dream of a “New World Order”, that many people, instead of being fooled by it, are waking up and seeking the truth behind the shenanigans we are seeing played out on the world stage by such groups as the World Economic Forum. Those that are waking up hate what they are waking up to! But is that the plan? Could Satan and his human agents have set up this current globalist “New World Order” as the decoy that people are waking up to? It seems to me that Klaus Schwab and his ilk love it when discussions of a “New World Order” is spread all over the place. Could it be because they created this narrative?

Therefore, with that said, it is worth considering, that it will be the one after this, the new “New World Order”, that some are even calling “The Great Awakening” that could very well turn out to be the beast government system spoken of in Revelation 17, being initially ridden by the harlot Mystery Babylon.”...and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns”
Revelation 17:3.

Therefore, it's the one after this, the one being positioned to be accepted as the truth, the one that will tear down this current world system and bring peace...which will turn out to be The Beast System that results in the emergence of the Antichrist. And it is unavoidable, as the current world system, Mystery Babylon the Harlot, is tyrannical beyond any form of reason.

Now take note of this, The Bible speaks of the final world government (the beast out of the sea, Revelation 13:1) that is led ultimately by the Antichrist, as being wanted by the world, Revelation 13:4, John 5:43. However, wherever we look, all over the world, people are opposing the current world system, and its continuing tyrannical proclamations. This would make the current world system, The Harlot, Mystery Babylon. We will find out shortly what becomes of “her”. Remember, there will not be Peace on Earth without the return to Earth, and reign of the LORD Jesus Christ.

We could soon see a major war, then a peace treaty with Israel, brokered by a not very well known diplomat, sort of a patsy antichrist (remember we are told in 1 John 2:18-19, there will come many antichrists), then a time of peace, but then the treaty is broken, catastrophe follows, and as it really appears that the world is heading toward Armageddon...the real Antichrist comes on the scene...destroys the patsy and eliminates the decoy new world order. The world then heralds the real Antichrist as the Savior. A false flag diversion like this is really nothing new.

Therefore, it is very conceivable, that as in Revelation 17, where we see the scarlet colored beast, with seven heads and ten horns, turn on the harlot, and devour her, we can make the correlation, that as many wake up to the tyranny of the present world system, (The Harlot) that the new world system that emerges out of this so-called Great Awakening, could be that very beast.

However, before the real Antichrist is given the command from The Throne, by God, to go forth, Revelation 6:2, the Body of Christ, the true body of believers in Christ, is removed in the Rapture. How long before, well, that's another topic.

Just think about how many will be completely disillusioned by a chain of events like this. And it is perfectly reasonable to suspect that Satan would do this, and then how willing the world will want the real Antichrist. They will proclaim, Peace on Earth without the true the current world system, (the Harlot), the Earth will then be divided into 10 super-sections. Revelation 17:12. Each one of these sections will have a king.

This plan does not work out for Satan, Satan's angels, or his human agents, as the Trumpet and Bowl Judgments of Revelation 8-11 and Revelation 16 are released onto the earth. Therefore, Satan's only next move is to go "scorched earth", and corrupt the Earth so badly, much worse than at the time of the Flood.

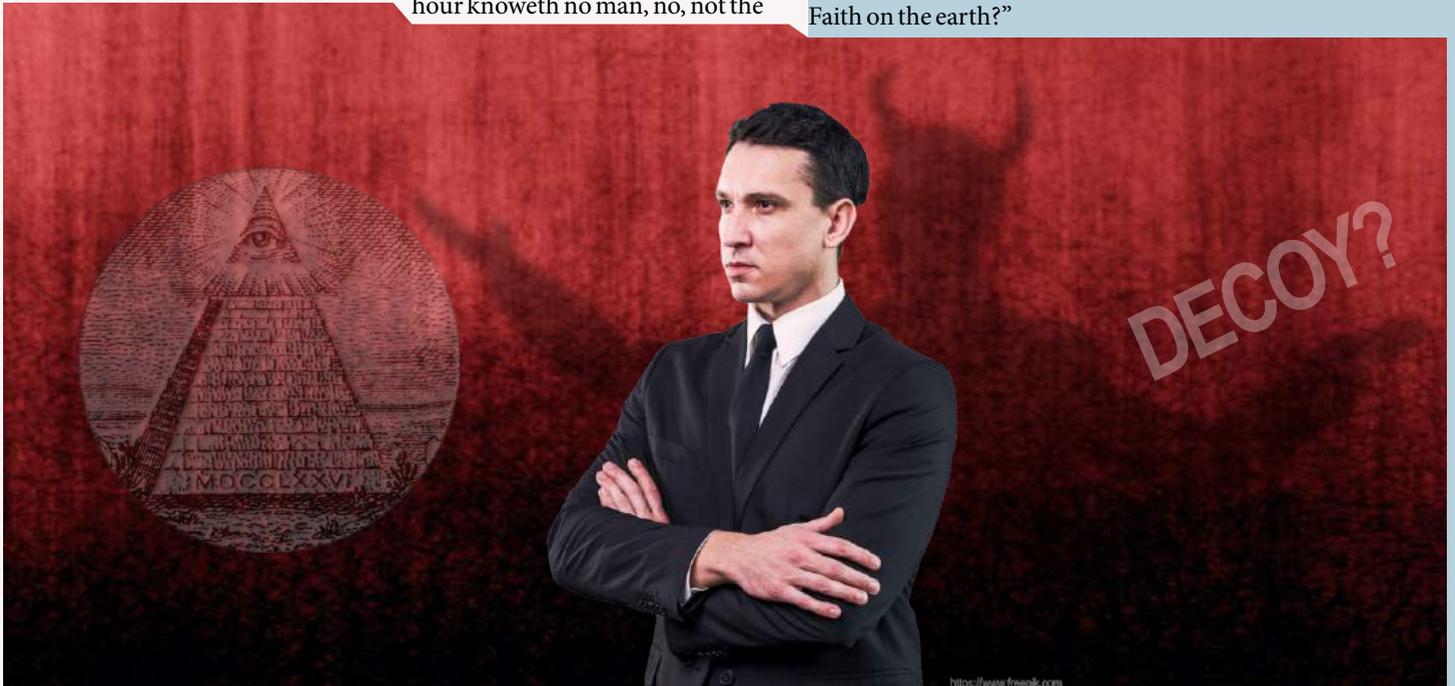

Matt. 24:36-39 " But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the "Truth Movement" or better known today the "Great Awakening."

And then also:

Luke 18:7-8 "And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him, though he bear long with them? I tell you that he will avenge them speedily.

Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find the Faith on the earth?"

Christ of Heaven returning to reign on Earth.

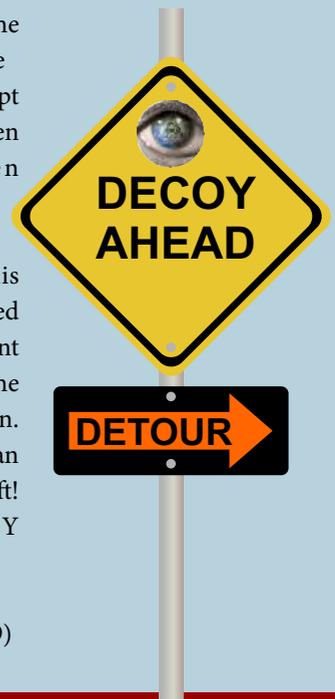

What you must understand, is the mission in this of Satan. Prior to the above, and the events of Revelation 13, Satan and his angels are cast out of Heaven and the heavenlies and thrown down, confined to the earth and the sea. (Revelation 12). So, Satan's #1 priority at this point is to bring back his plan that he had initiated right after the Flood at Babel...and that was to get back what was lost because of God's Judgment, the Antediluvian world. Therefore, after the new Beast system, (with all of its greatly awakened participants), devours angels of heaven, but my Father only. But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

The answer to that is NO! By the time of the LORD's return to the Earth, most of what is left, except for the remnant of the Children of Israel, will have been corrupted.

Satan, Satan's angels, and his human agents will have believed by that point, that God will want to have nothing to do with the Earth, and Satan will have won. This is the only move that Satan and his minions will have left! They will be SORELY disappointed!

(Revelation 19)

If you're new to George, don't worry. I'll be taking you on a journey through time. In the inaugural issue of GO, George Online, I'm throwing it back to introduce you to the OG. That is, the "original GEORGE."

by Rachel Scheib

If you're new to George, don't worry. I'll be taking you on a journey through time. The picture of us all hopping into a giant tour bus with "George" written on the front in big red letters comes to mind. The engine starts up and off we are to discover why we should even be on this tour bus in the first place. The answer to that question is an answer to many questions we all may already be exploring.

On newsstands across the nation, a political magazine known as George emerged in the fall of 1995. Between the glossy covers of Vogue, Vanity Fair, and Cosmopolitan, George likely blended in. But now, nearly 27 years later, it is obvious there is more to George than meets the eye. Much more.

John Kennedy Jr. created the magazine to incorporate politics with pop culture, satisfying society's ever-growing want for factual information with the need to be entertained. In an interview with Larry King, Kennedy stated he wanted to "change the definition of a political magazine." As the Internet grew and information became easier to attain, political figures found success in becoming visitors on late night talk shows, sitcoms, radio shows, and other modes of informal mass communication.

Amusing yet informative, it was the first magazine of its kind and proudly touted its signature and accurate catch phrase "not just politics as usual." Cover artist Matt Berman was appointed the job of integrating top models and movie stars with notable political figures, a feat accomplished beautifully. Each cover tells a story, both the cover itself as well as the words written on the covers. For instance, on the Robert De Niro cover (December 1995/January 1996), the sword De Niro is clutching, piercing the ace of spades? That was George Washington's actual sword.

In his book, "JFK Jr., George & Me," Berman wrote about the time Kennedy left the sword in his possession. Berman worriedly asked Kennedy, "What if I leave it in the cab?" Kennedy coolly replied, "You won't." These types of documented memories have turned the magazine into a bit of a story for me with characters I've grown to appreciate and love.

When George introduced its inaugural issue, I was just 11. I didn't know much of anything about politics, nor did I care. Though I was just a kid at the time, I think many Americans shared my sentiments about politics no matter what their ages.

John Kennedy knew that. As the son of a former President, he knew how important it was for Americans to understand politics. As a beloved public icon, he knew how much entertainment was needed to achieve that goal. Anyone who has read the articles knows he accomplished just that. cont..

So how in the world did I go from an 11 year old girl who'd never heard of GEORGE to a 38 year old woman who is writing articles about them? I thought you'd never ask!

Like many of you reading this, the year 2020 afforded me the time to slow down and dig. From that research I discovered a lot of things, one being GEORGE Magazine. A year later as luck would have it, I found myself cleaning out a basement for a man with dementia. His adult kids lived across the country and didn't want the hassle of traveling back to clean out his townhome. So there I was, sorting and tossing all his junk left there for years. Newspaper clippings. Old monthly blankets. VHS tapes. You get the idea.

In one of the boxes, I noticed a familiar image. It was the inaugural GEORGE Magazine with Cindy Crawford on the front. Of course I set it aside, saving it from being thrown away. That was the first publication of my George Magazine collection; how fitting is it that it was the first issue? I now have them all as well as some duplicates. Instead of the "crazy cat lady" (I have no cats), I've lovingly referred to myself as "the crazy GEORGE lady." What I have found as I highlight the covers and articles on my social media channels is nothing short of mind-boggling.

Oftentimes the articles help connect dots as to why things are the way they are now. I have learned an immense amount from the contributors, columnists, political analysts, and John Kennedy himself within the pages of George Magazine. Call it 'Politics: 101, GEORGE style.' No tuition necessary.

If you believe in coincidences, there are a hefty amount of them in John Kennedy's GEORGE Magazine, the OG. If you don't generally believe in coincidences, welcome. You'll fit right in.

I am honored to share my thoughts in the NEW GEORGE Magazine, www.georgeonline.com, especially in its inaugural issue. One can learn a lot about the future looking back at the past. What's that saying? If you don't learn from history, you're bound to ... well, you know the rest. Here's to new beginnings and fresh starts. And here's to GEORGE.

FEMINIST

Can Femininity be regained?

By Linda Devereaux

It's no secret that nature as well as culture have defined femininity since the beginning of time. Nature has had the upper hand, of course, as most woman's physical feminine attributes cannot be denied. However, the psychological characteristics of femininity along with the physical characteristics are currently being reshaped by today's culture. But is today's society offering an accurate depiction of who women really are? How they really feel? How they want to be portrayed? Or is this a movement designed to have us accept a norm that prohibits the natural qualities of femininity.

Looking back to antiquity, Cleopatra is a genuine example of a femininity: "from every ancient source, we have a testimony to Cleopatra's irresistible charm," says essayist, Stacy Schiff. Cleopatra's feminine allure is a historical fact. Only, it's just as important to note that Cleopatra is the definition of a true feminist as well. As Greek philosopher, Plutarch puts it, 'her ability to speak many languages including the language of flattery and, essentially, to be able to turn people to her will is great political genius, in that respect."

No doubt about it, the woman was a stunner, but her femaleness was also defined by her strong presence, her witty character, her powerful tone, and her persuasive speech; and because she possessed innate beauty, she wasn't afraid to use her feminine wiles to assist her in achieving her goal: to be the sole leader of Egypt. Nice job, Cleo!

Over the course of the last 60+ years, the unraveling of what defines femininity has been eye opening for sure. In less than a lifetime we've witnessed the category evolve from classy, soft, and sexy to powerful, strong and, interestingly, gender-neutral, losing the twist of gentleness and enticement that has always encompassed how we categorize the classic feminine woman. And enticement that has always encompassed how we categorize the classic feminine woman.

For example, you can track feminine traits and the psychological differences in old black and white TV shows of the late 1950's early 1960's. One of my all-time favorites is Perry Mason. I love Perry's debonaire private detective, Paul Drake's style. Whenever Paul enters Mason's law office and finds Perry diligently collaborating with his assistant, the classy Miss Della Street, Drake addresses Della with his signature flirty declaration "Hello beautiful." Whoa! Wait a minute! What? Try that in today's office environment... off to HR with you!

Stereotypical femininity has its flaws, but the natural characteristics of a woman's identity won't be altered no matter what society tells her.

But Della is the epitome of femininity for the time. Always in a smart suit and high heels, she accepts having doors opened, chairs pulled out, and recognizes comments like Paul's as flattery. She's an attractive, smart woman, a 1950's classic lady who oozes style and grace and knows her role as Perry and Paul's associate in the law practice is a critical one. And they know it too! Della's intelligence and femininity merge to create an attractive persona that both men and women of that era found respectable and irresistible. Paul Drake was a man's man. Della, a lady's lady.

Fast forward to the 1970's. My how things change! Feminism and femininity exist side by side! While women fight for their rights, they become even more confident in their femininity. And it was never more apparent than in the fashion trends of the day. Feminine style takes a giant leap and now includes wearing pants in the workplace, liberating women from the strangle of pantyhose! Casual wear is hip-hugger blue jeans and belly baring halter tops. And let's not forget 70's nightlife fashion; a slinky Danskin dress worn with platform shoes making women visions of loveliness on the disco-dance floor.

During this radical period, women embrace their new fashion identity; the fresh persona created, exposing them in an entirely new way...particularly when the feminist movement urges them to burn their bras!

All kidding aside, femininity over time has not only been about style and fashion, but it's style and fashion that alludes to women feeling like women. Thank you, Shania Twain, for expressing that so well in 1997!

The feminine ideal is quickly evolving and approaching a new and different phase. Bye-bye Victoria Secret Angels, hello gender equity. But is it important to redefine femininity... moving from what men really want to what woman really want? By all indications, the answer is a resounding...maybe. Culture may be changing, but some things cannot change.

Stereotypical femininity has its flaws, but the natural characteristics of a woman's identity won't be altered no matter what society tells her.

The fact is a woman's inherent feminine characteristics haven't shifted at all. Women are confident, mentally strong, and creative. Every one of us is a Cleopatra, a Della Street, and continues to have the mind set of the unconventional woman of the 1970's. Women are intrinsically nurtures, sensitive, and tender, with an enthusiastic sexuality put forth in a soft, cool voice; a feminine voice that says I am beautiful in all my ways, and I am strong in heart. So, to answer the question: Can femininity be regained?

The truth is...it can never be lost.

THE AMERICAN

DREAM

My family and I immigrated to this beautiful Land Of The Free, Land of Opportunity, the American Dream... in 1979! I was merely 9 years old on that hot and exciting August night as we landed at Los Angeles International Airport. The nightlights made the City of Angels seem bigger than the whole country of Romania!

Escaping communism came at a price my father had to pay during the second world war. He was recruited by the Americans, along with thousands of other young men from the eastern block of Europe, to train them in espionage. After 18 months, they were no longer needed and turned over to the respective authorities. Most received life sentences, some survived and some did not. My father was released along with many others after 14 years, serving from the age of 19 to 34!

Fast forward to 1979, the American government stepped in and provided an exit strategy for those same young men. What would typically take 25-50 years to receive an exit visa from the Romanian Communist Government, we had ours in 2 months! And so did all the others that were still alive!

Why would so many want to flee a Communist State and find opportunity in other parts of the world, such as America the Great? Freedom? The U.S. Constitution? America's Bill of Rights? The answer is YES, all of that and so much more...

Most Americans know there is a Constitution, yet have they read it? Do we really know how it represents and protects us? Do we really know the Amendments? Knowledge is only power when it is put into action as a plan, executed, and applied. My message to the world has been very clear. Get involved, research, study and find the Truth! Only Truth shall set you Free!

My Father gave our Family new opportunity in this beautiful system called America! He worked his ass off to provide and protect us! He was always involved in some sort of politics in Romania and the USA! In his last years he often spoke of the Communist similarities and direction America is going in. Many chose not to believe and even ridicule him. Yet here we are, in 2022 where Americans don't know what to believe anymore. We've been divided into Democrats, Republicans, Conservatives, Liberals, etc... Divided we are weak!

The Human Dynamic wants and deserves to be free, not controlled and manipulated! Can you imagine if the scholastic system really taught the Constitution? How about the Amendments? How about Civil Law? Instead, we memorized the 50 states! How's that working out for us? This begs the question of "What to do"? Again, get involved, research and find the Truth!

YOU Can Own A Piece Of History!

Highly sought after collectable art from -

www.thecommandersartist.com

I'm honored to have a very special interview with an Artist many of you have come to know, respect; all friend, as well as deeply appreciate his amazing Art. He's an Artist who will go down in History as a Patriot who, with his brush, sharp eye, phenomenal talent, captured the Political battle of our lifetime in brilliant color. We've seen Patriot Heroes like The People's General Michael Flynn, as well as The Greatest President of our lifetime, Donald Trump come alive in his pieces. His Art has not only captured the Spirit & Trials of this Historical time, he's given us a look into the hearts & determined souls of our Heroes who've fought & defended Our Great Republic .. his pieces gave us hope & lifted our tired hearts. He's also given us a look into the Hitleresque tyranny of those who've tried to destroy all we know; love about our Great Nation. And He's Not Even Close Slowing Down Yet!! You know him as; The Commander's Artist, So let's get to it!

by Donna Gwin

DG- At what age did you discover you had a gift for art?

Well, by age of nine I was drawing comic book characters. My aunt thought I was tracing the images but when my mother showed her the original image I was drawing from, mine was twice the size.

DG- What type of training did you receive for expanding YOUR art?

Well, after I served in the military for my country I attended the Art Institute to further my learning.

DG- What made you decide to do POLITICAL art as form of communicating ideas?

I would say the idea came when the social media platforms started silencing Patriot Voices, truth and facts.

Memes were a way to say what needed to be said without saying a word. Then I decided to do more in the way of serious Prints as opposed to memes. I wanted it to be more professional mimicking a magazine cover.

DG- You pour your heart and soul into each piece. I feel your own convictions, beliefs and core values show in each one. How much do you feel you pull on these values when working on each individual painting?

I try to keep it simple not overpowering my values on others but just show how I perceive them.

DG- You bring such life to each piece. The characters in your Art seem to come from a place of deep admiration for Patriots, and at the same time, shines light on those who have shown themselves to be very much anti-AMERICAN. Have you ever feared retaliation when you show them in an honest, truthful but what they see as unfavorable light?

Interesting question Donna, Yes at first but as of today I believe fear needs to be put in check if we want to get the truth out.

DG- I know you put many hours into each work of Art. Where do you get the ideas and decide which person or subject to work on next?

My friends call it a God thing! I have to agree with them because the ideas flow so naturally. I might be creative but this is coming from a higher creative spirit.

DG – How do you come up with new amazing ideas to paint?

Like I said it's a God thing!

DG – At the event in Vegas, a lady came who had lost everything, her job gone, due to Covid-19, and she had spent the last of her money to get there. She wanted to be there to learn and meet Lt General Flynn. There was so much happening she wasn't going to be able to meet him. As soon as you saw her heart breaking, you gifted her two signed art pieces by Gen-Flynn. You always make time and give to everyone. What drives you to give so much of your hard work away, asking nothing in return?

Simple, it's better to give than receive is what I believe is the true blessing in this life. Nothing worse than a greedy person always taking and never giving back. Believe me, I have met many like this.

DG – How did you meet General Flynn?

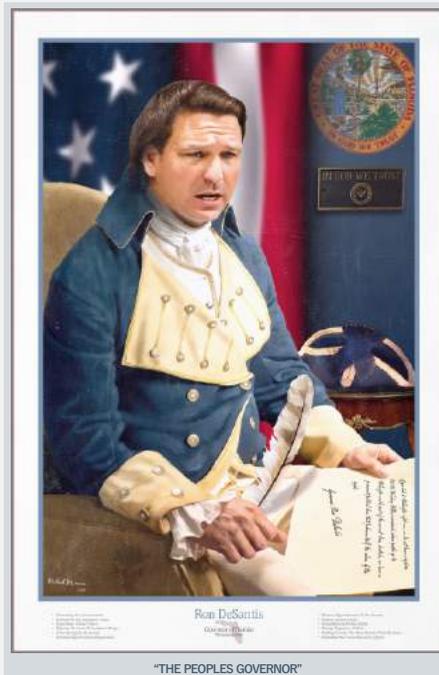

That's a story that Gen-Mike and I are saving for another time to do together. I want him to be recognized also.

DG – Do you work with General Flynn? Was his sister the key to open the door? A friend told me General's Flynn's sister Barbara, followed her on Twitter, so I made contact with her there and Barbara is the one who put me in touch with General Flynn.

That's a story that Gen-Mike and I are saving for another time to do together.

DG – Do you work with General Flynn? Was his sister the key to open the door? A friend told me General's Flynn's sister Barbara, followed her on Twitter, so I made contact with her there and Barbara is the one who put me in touch with General Flynn.

Yes, I am General Flynn's commissioned Artist among many other high profile people. We have worked together to do Benefits for many different people and organizations, and still do.

DG – I hear Donald Trump has your art, is this true? Just recently at Mar-a-Lago?

Yes, that is true. I am truly honored he loved the print of him and his son Barron.

DG- I've known you for a long time and I know how hard you've worked and how long you have waited for one of your Art pieces to get to President Trump. Can you describe how you felt when you finally witnessed the amazing Piece of Trump and his son Baron being handed to him? I know I was excited, and my heart was so very proud for you.

TAKING BACK WHAT IS OURS!
The People's Republic

People always ask what's the meaning?

All of my art has many political and life meanings, some hidden like 'Where is Waldo', other meanings are plainly visible. The point of my art, like all art, is to get people to ponder and think, just think and take it all in.

Political art has been throughout mankind's history ever since man began to paint and write on cave walls. They may not have called it political art but in reality they were record the tyranny of their lives. From the famous story of, Cain slew Able, to the tower of Babel and on to the renaissance period till today.

Michael Marrone

The Commander's Artist

I nearly fell off my chair when the news from two of my friends text me a video of him receiving it.

DG – When did you get involved with Clay Clark Freedom tour?

First time was July of 2021. I was asked by Gen-Mike to show the world my art as a motivational and inspiring form for the true patriots to get involved in saving AMERICA.

DG – Had you had any clue to the fact GEORGE publication was interested in you doing the cover art?

Had no clue till I received a phone call asking if I'll do the cover art for all issues.

DG- When you found out your Art was going to be on the cover of GEORGE, would you give us an idea of how you processed that fact, knowing that you Almost Quit at one time?

Well, there's a person in my life that kept me motivated to keep doing my work. I was about to retire my art creations. A longtime friend Donna Gwin or KittyPatriot4America as she's known on social media, she refused to let me quit. If I mentioned quitting, she would stay on me until I gave in. She kept telling me, "God has a plan for you Mike, You Can't Stop Now!" She was relentless, but right.

DG – Some have said because of you Gen. Flynn was made into a superhero before he was even acquitted.

General Flynn was a Hero long before I started doing this Art. I have however portrayed him to be the Hero and exceptional Patriot he is. I do believe my Art brought much attention to what General Flynn and his family had been going through. The gross injustice, false accusations, unfair attacks and framing of a great Patriot who gave thirty plus years of his life, serving and defending our Country. I felt I had to do something, and this was something I could do.

G- Did you give some of your Art Prints to be auctioned for General Flynn's defense fund?

Yes. We had several auctions where one hundred percent of the funds went to his defense Fund. I wish I could have done more.

DG – Some say you're the one who works in the background connecting many together, in fact even discovering talent for the movement. Examples?

Yes it's true, but I rather stay silent on who. They all know what I did for them and that's good enough for me. Remember its better to give?

DG- I've witnessed how your Art brings Patriots together. We all have a common goal of Making America Great, saving our kids and grandkids futures and freedom. Much of your early Art was calling attention to different views of the right and left, Democrat vs Republican. Since we were so heavily silenced, banned and kept from speaking truth or stating facts, did you feel your Art and or Prints would help wake people up to the issues of our time? I feel your early memes and Prints were a brilliant way to get truth to many without saying a word.

Well you hope they would. Many caught the hidden messages in those early memes.

Q - How much of the content of your early works were focused on shining a Patriotic view and shining a light on the issues we found our Country facing?

Simply a 100%!

DG- One of my most heartwarming moments was in Dallas when General Flynn was talking to Patriot Leonard Crowl, as he wanted to be portrayed in his Print, we heard his story and with not a dry eye in the room, the feeling of love and Patriotism filled that room. Without hesitation, you offered to paint Leonard in his uniform, and gift for him and his family. That touched his heart, but he wanted to "be a Patriot" he said.

Yes, he lost everything in a house fire. He was a Navy vet, he recently passed. I offered to paint him in his navy uniform but he stopped me at, "No, I want to be a patriot this time. I already fought in WWII."

Leonard was the kindest person and very mentally sharp for his age in the upper 90's.

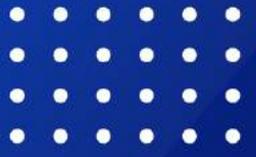

DC - Where does your generosity come from? You always give freely and fiercely defend what is right. You are one of the most amazing Patriots I know. I'm honored to call you friend.

Thank you, you as well. My faith in God and faith in His justice.

Thank You Mr. President

After 16 years, he was so disenchanted with the corruption in DC, he gave up his goal of public service and walked away from the world of politics. Being tired of waiting to get things done and blocked by other politicians who claimed to be allies but were only stumbling stones, he knew that he had a mission that could wait no longer ... but the road Scott began walking was not without pitfalls. After many years of competitive bodybuilding and owning/operating several high-end fitness & wellness centers, he was in a catastrophic motorcycle accident in 2014 that left him physically disabled. In a situation where many would give up the good fight and cut whatever losses remained, Scott surrendered his health and wellbeing to the Most High.

Through faith, support, and a mission more important than any other in his life, he went on to reclaim his complete mobility and is now battling harder and hotter than ever for those truths we all hold self-evident. His ideas are, of course, not without opposition. He knows firsthand that the elites who have seized the reigns of our nation are not trying to solve the problems, but to make the problems go away for the "Specials," those in power who love to think that the citizens serve the government, not the other way around. Scott's experience within the slow-turning wheels of politics gives him a unique view on how our government runs, how it SHOULD be, and how to achieve that necessary change. Scott takes a sledgehammer to this wall of opposition with fervor and righteous anger, but one man can only make a hole so big ... that is why he recognizes the real power of Patriotstreetfighter.com is the support of compatriots, patriots who recognize the immense importance of returning to a life of facts, humility, and brotherhood.

Gene asked first, "What do the supporters of the movement mean to you?"

There was no hesitation whatsoever as Scott quickly answered that "they are the lifeblood of the effort." He is the voice of the movement Scott says, but the real force and power comes from the supporters, the people who rally together in fellowship and celebration of freedom, but also with the somber purpose to expose those who would seek to destroy our great Union. He always takes time to speak with his supporters, but he realizes that the greatest part of his business is to get to meet like-minded citizens who share his love of liberty and the great people who support her.

to speak to as many people for as long as he is able. He knows that the connection he shares with them is powerful, but fragile, and the ley line between him and others can only be maintained by ceaseless attention and care. Referring to an anecdote he recently heard, Gene asked Scott to describe his feelings after a situation that led him to miss an opportunity to meet and chat with a few supporters. They were ready to see him after an event, but Scott had to excuse himself for what he thought would be just a moment. That moment took longer than expected, and when Scott returned to their location, dismayed that people had left, either by their own accord or at the behest of the event's security team. The idea that he might have left someone in the dark or feeling ignored by the lack of interaction was taken as nothing less than personal for him, something that he still thinks about and uses as an impetus to remember who he is really doing all this for. Distraction from the true cause and deception from the enemy lead to dissolution of the effort. Scott realized that he was not fulfilling his soul by just touring and speaking, but that battling to help save the country and his kinsmen was the end game of all his struggles.

Gene was interested in knowing what attracts people to Patriotstreetfighter.com, to which Scott replied, "All I know is they feel like they know me." He is constantly approached by others who let him know they feel like he has always been a part of their life, and they know him on a deep personal level ... without ever speaking to him before! Scott acknowledged that this is a trait he has always seemed to have. Those exact words of "I feel like I've known you forever" repeatedly spoken to him on first dates and new acquaintances constantly, and he recognized his empathetic nature could be used for the good of others. The connections that he makes with his supporters are what really matters. He also feels there is no one else around right now more willing to stand in front of the cameras and tell the world exactly what he thinks, without a filter to soften the blow. Remember the AC/DC axe intros? Here is the big one ...

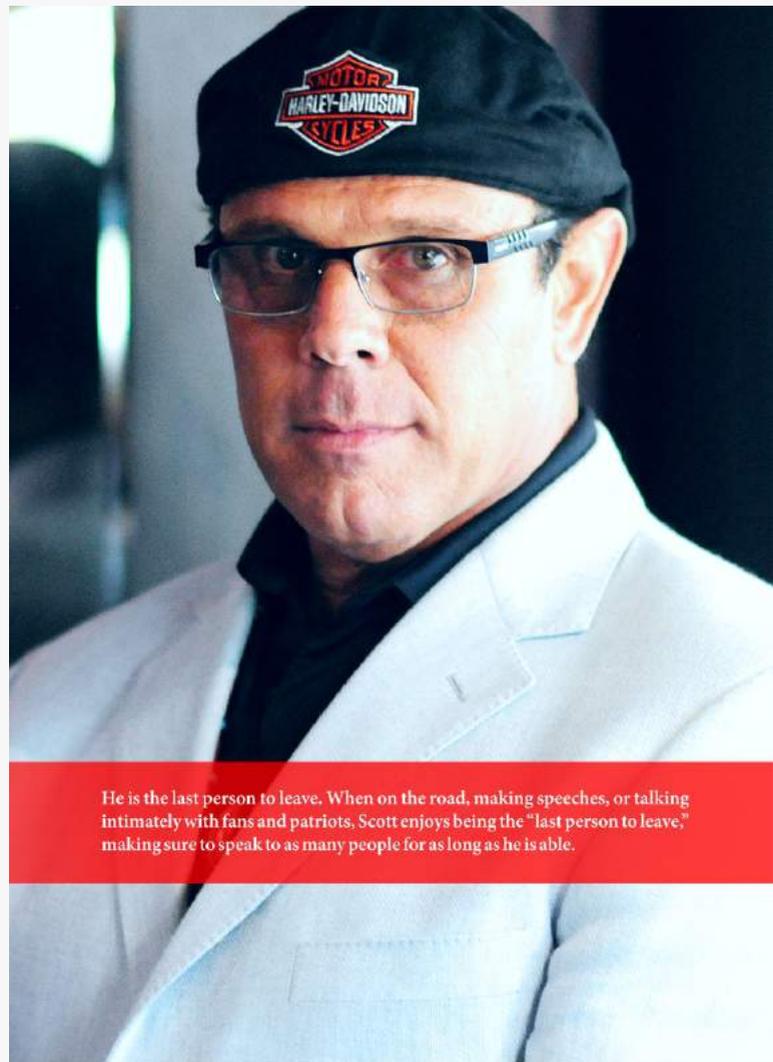

Gene asked, "What do we do to fix America?"

Scott replied that it is not in his hands but in the Hands of God, and through that Power He will use His people to return our nation to the humble exceptionalism we know to be evident. We cannot rest on our laurels and expect someone to rescue us, and the first way we can do this is to recognize that there is no way to the Father but through the Son. Scott knows there is no need for confessing to a priest, who is a fellow sinner by nature. He knows that going to church every Sunday and singing in the choir is useless if your heart is not right with the Lord. He knows that putting faith in people and institutions is the opposite of what we must do to save the county ... indeed, our opposite of what we must do to save the county ... indeed, our righteousness is as filthy rags before the Lord, but true faith, even that of a mustard seed, can move mountains.

'One people, Under GOD' Scott mentioned near the end of the interview that there is a disturbing reality around us is blatantly ignored ... the Luciferian infiltration of our Holy Bible and the twisting of its teachings through human interpretation. Those principalities who seek to destroy us have installed a sense of pacifism in modern Christian society, leading believers to the notion that Jesus was never angry or aggressive and that we should take it all in stride as the planet we have stewardship of crumbles around us, that all we must do is take a fetal position and wait for the New Jerusalem to descend upon earth so we may reap our reward ... but no reward is without cost. As Scott said so very well, "Jesus did not always turn the other cheek." (Remember what happened to the moneychangers in the temple?)

Peace is what we yearn for, but therein lies the path to destruction if we are not willing to stand firm like a tree planted by the water when it comes to defending truth, not only God's but also the truth of liberty. When it comes to battling a world that has decided to 'call good evil and evil good', Scott believes the only way to victory is to take his efforts to Mach III and not just admire the maker of the sword, but to be willing to seize it and use the Power behind it (and behind ALL of creation) to help bring about the peace that passeth all understanding.

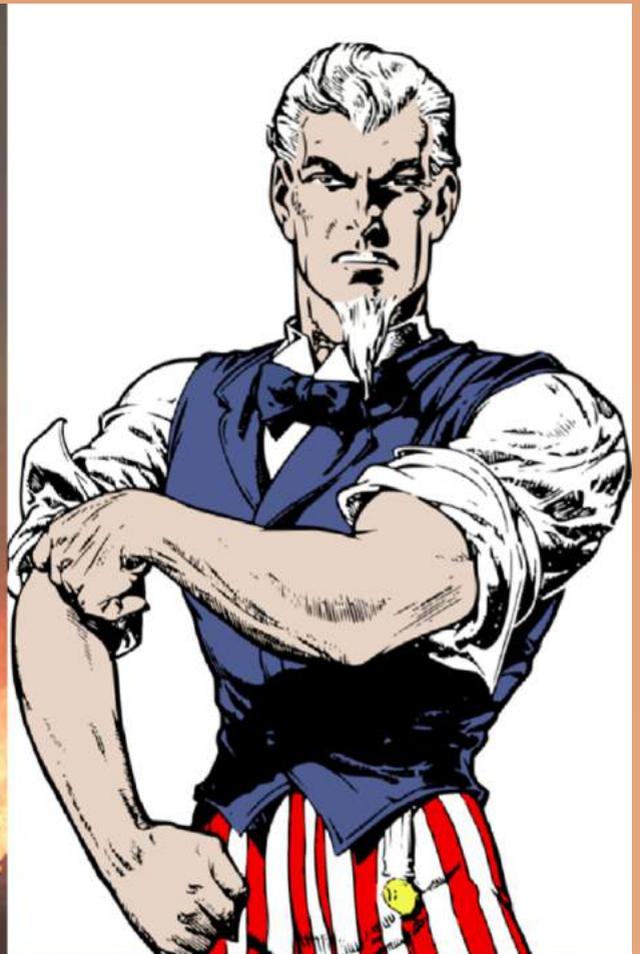

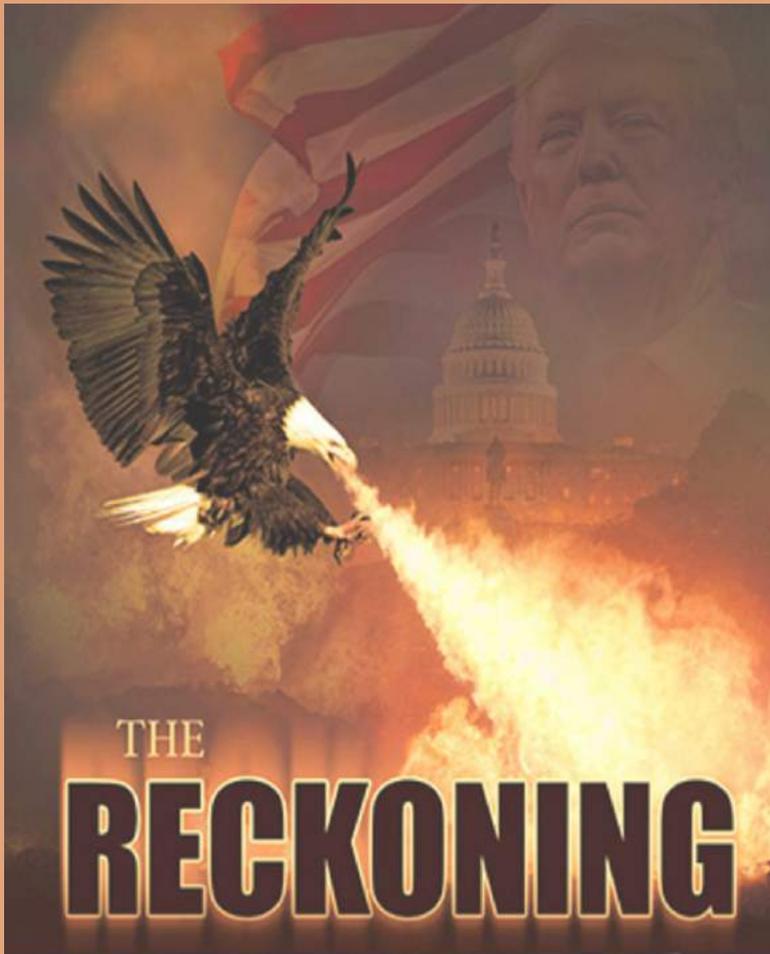

He is the last person to leave. When on the road, making speeches, or talking intimately with fans and patriots, Scott enjoys being the "last person to leave," making sure to speak to as many people for as long as he is able.

Gene's last question, "is there one sure way to bring it all together?"

Scott says his whole operation is just a "smoke out" ... that is to say, finding out who really has your six versus who is just waiting for the other shoe to drop so they can pounce on an opportunity to edify themselves. It is obvious to him, "Why would a soldier frag" a fellow statesman, unless they are an enemy? May people try to discredit Scott by claiming he accepts funds from the opposition or is a shill for the other side, but those who know him on a deep personal level (as many may feel even without knowing him personally) can say with no doubt whatsoever that Scott has no agenda and no price tag. There is certainly no way to quantify the blessings and mercies poured out upon Scott's life, both professionally and personally, earned, or undeserved. May we all find a way to be as grateful and productive as he is for the sake of our country and the values used to create it.

God I Miss Rudy Giuliani.

by George Young

“Eric Adams is a TALKER, not a DOER”

IN THE LAND OF THE COOL,
HIP, BLACK DUDE MAYOR

You can make as much fun of the elder statesman as you like, but if you lived in NYC in the 70s and 80s (Yes, I did), you would understand what a brilliant job he performed.

Times Square was the pornography and prostitution center of the universe. Central Park was nowhere to be at night . . . or even during the day. The Bronx lost so many residents and buildings to urban blight, crime, and occupancy flight the city lost track of the number of empty apartments.

The subways were graffiti-covered homages to the disappearance of civic and community pride. The municipal unions were out of control. An endless (seemingly, anyway) parade of inept Democratic mayors from Wagner through Dinkins made the situation worse with each term. These mayors from Central Casting made brilliant speeches; dressed well; and looked good in public. But each mayor DID NOTHING.

The city, desperate for a solution, tossed out David Dinkins after one term, and elected Rudy Giuliani. By the time he finished his second term, Times Square put Disneyland to shame; Central Park could be traversed in the dark; and the subways took a shower and showed up for work, if not on time, certainly more conscientiously.

The usual malcontents, the ones who elect substance abusing dopes like Bill de Blasio and box-checking glad handlers like Eric Adams howled about the City as Police State. They lampooned the safe, fun, and entertaining Times Square. They grouched about the lack of personality in Central Park.

And at the first opportunity, after a fine 12 year management job by Michael Bloomberg, they installed the Body by Entenmann's Mayor, Bill de Blasio.

In less than eight years, NYC returned to the unsafe, crime-infested urban area of the 70s and 80s. People left. Jobs disappeared. The pandemic was badly handled. Riots broke out in the name of justice.

DO WE HAVE DECADES TO WAIT?

Billions of dollars of property was destroyed. And our bloated Mayor painted "Black Lives Matter" on Fifth Avenue. Ironic, since the famous thoroughfare received the brunt of the SJW wrath in the Summer of 2020.

In 2021, Mayor de Blasio was termed out. On the campaign trail Eric Adams boasted of his credentials as a former police captain. He knew the city. He knew how to fix the crime problem. Eight months in, Eric Adams TALKS about his experience, and that he knows what the crime problem is. He just doesn't DO ANYTHING about it.

It took more than three decades and five mayors before the residents of Manhattan had enough and voted for a Republican. In less than five years, that member of the GOP returned the city to its former greatness. Do we have decades to wait? Can we handle three more inept, smooth-talking, flashy-dressing, Do Nothings at Gracie Mansion? Wise up, New York City. It's not too late. Yet!

THE JOURNEY

THE DREAM

by Felicita Morales

My name is Chepita Morales, and I am a first generation American, born in Managua, Nicaragua in 1958 and later Naturalized as a US citizen. I grew up in an extremely poor family of six girls, three older, two younger, my mother and a physically and emotionally abusive alcoholic father who kept our family broke and without food due to his addiction. At the same time, my country was under the control of the Somoza family, a puppet regime put in place by the American Government, whose military police instilled fear in and wreaked havoc on the people. Countless nights I went to sleep scared and hungry.

Out of desperation, and in hope that I would have a better life in America, my mother allowed me to be sent to Washington, D.C. with a US Diplomat's family, who had become friends with my two older sisters. They offered to be my legal guardians and would provide, my education and physical needs. It was December of 1971; I was only thirteen years old.

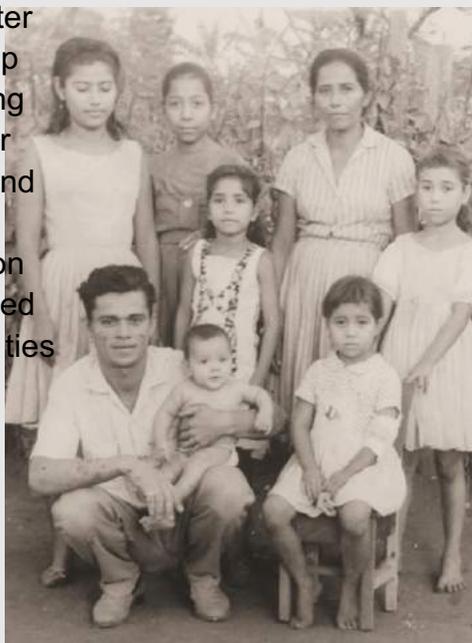

It was my new life now. I went to school in D.C. until July of 1976, when the State Department sent us on assignment to Chile. Two months later Sept 11, a U.S. backed military coup began with Augusto Pinochet seizing control of the country from Salvador Allende. Curfews, no toilet paper, and food shortages and bread lines began. I remember witnessing the execution of a dozen college students who lived across the street, accused of having ties to Allende's Marxist movement.

From Chile we were sent to Peru, where the Marxist terrorists were slowly beginning to infiltrate the country. Not really knowing what type of assignment we were on; I was in shock to see a group of the Marxist terrorists show up at our front door with guns drawn. We hid in the back of the house until they left and escaped the next day back to Washington D.C. We stayed in D.C. until he retired and then moved to Miami.

While living in Miami I turned eighteen. After years of pretending to be his "adopted" daughter, he coerced me into marrying him in 1977. But just three years later, my life took another unexpected turn, when I met and fell in love with a young Air Force guy. I was still married at the time, but eleven months later I divorced the old man, married my new husband, Phillip and had a baby girl.

In 1998 I surrendered my life to Jesus Christ and have been His ambassador for the gospel ever since. God had orchestrated all the events in my life according to His purpose in preparing me for His mission work. He has given me a platform through our retail uniform shop, to talk with people everyday about Him, politics, healthcare, and family issues, as well as a weekly immigration report on a local radio talk show.

From Managua, Nicaragua to become a Naturalized U.S. citizen

But just three years later, my life took another unexpected turn, when I met Phillip and fell in love with a Air Force guy.

As a legal Latina, I feel angry and disappointed at what is happening to America and its people. As a government 'Of, For, and By the People,' we must actively engage and take part in our political system to effect the changes we wish. In 2020 I wrote a fingerprint ID bill for the purpose of stopping voter fraud by using www.writeyourlaws.com which I sent to our State Representative to send to Congress. But there are many ways to take part in our system of government, and we must! A poor immigrant child from Nicaragua is doing it, so can you.

I love my America, blessed by God, and worth fighting for.

RETURN OF TRUMP

By Gene Ho – Editor in Chief of GEORGE

You know it; it's like watching a movie, and midway through you're dying to tell others the ending you've already figure out. "Just watch. Any bets that..."

And there it is! And it happens just like as you predicted. "Ah, ha!!! I told you!!" And everyone sitting next is just shaking their head because they guessed the same ending. As if YOU had some great insight.

Doesn't matter how improbable it may seem. Deep inside – you know it – and everyone else does too: Regardless of how you feel about his personality, Donald Trump's policies were great for America and good for you as well. Be honest with yourself: If you could trade him—straight up—for Joe Biden today, would you?

Nearly everyone has shared their theories. As for me, I love them all. In one corner, you have theories ranging from executive orders that would put the military in control. Conversely, you have scenarios where states would realize, "Oops? We made a mistake. Return these Electoral College votes into the Trump column."

I think I've nearly all the scenarios. Some I believe could be a reality. Others... not so much.

Here's what I think just might be playing out...

What we have seen in the past year is runaway inflation and "a common enemy" (gas prices) worthy to unite Americans. There is always a segment of the population that says, "It's not the PRESIDENT that set the gas prices!" However, it was Joe Biden who axed the Keystone XL pipeline his first day upon taking control. Greatly reducing supply while demand remains constant is "Economics 101"; what did he think would happen to the price of gas? Joe knew. They all did and we're paying the price.

Most Americans agree that the President and/or his policies have SOMETHING to do with the gas prices.

It's painful. Even when you're filling up your tank you play games with yourself. It's kind of like when you purposely set your clock 10 minutes ahead to "fool" yourself into thinking you are behind on time, just so you can be ahead of time.

I've done it. I don't want the pain of spending $100 to fill up my tank. So, I've filled it halfway as if two fifty-dollar "fill-ups" feels better than a hundred-dollar, one-time fill-up.

Most Americans have blamed this on Joe Biden. With ALL DUE RESPECT, Mr. Biden... Don't shoot the messenger...

People have blamed Joe Biden for our economic woes, and I know this. Americans have NEVER been so united. When you are in gas pumps and you have a "Come and Take It" bumper sticker on the back of your car, and the guy next to you has a "COEXIST" bumper sticker? And the guy next to you figures you're a conservative talking about guns, and you assume he is a liberal?

All good... but are we really sworn enemies?

You can both be at the pump and agree that we deserve something better than $5/gallon gasoline?

The economy, open borders, Afghanistan debacle, and the other "mistakes" are uniting Americans. I've even heard from my left leaning friends who are saying, "I still hate Trump, but I'm going to vote for him next time."

Here's another thing... There are some on the right that say that the system is broken and that there is fraud at the ballot boxes.

Regardless of how you feel about that, here is what has been going on these past two years: The STATES have been tightening up their voting laws.

Many Americans still falsely believe that the federal elections are all run by the Federal Government. In fact? That is what the "fight" is still about to this day.

See – the Federal Government currently doesn't dictate "how voting is to be done."

There is no magic button that says, "Let's get rid of voting machines and let's switch to paper ballots." There is nothing that says, "Let's do the "purple thumb" version of voting. You vote, and then you dip your right thumb in purple ink to show you voted."

I'm hoping that some these solutions may have their place in due time.

But here is the reality...

It's the individual states that have jurisdiction over the federal elections. Each state does it "their way." For Conservatives? That is what they want. Conservatives want STATES' RIGHTS.

During the past two years, there has been a plethora of laws in battleground states that have changed. I love that word "plethora." It reminds me of the "Three Amigos" movie back in the 80's. "Can you even define 'plethora'?"

Research for yourself. See how many laws that the conservative legislatures in Conservative States have been changed.

You don't need me to tell you; look it up yourself.

There are hundreds of STATE laws that have been changed in battleground states that straight up favor the conservative agenda. Many of these are things that some would think are "no brainers." Such as requiring a driver's licenses (or similar ID) to vote.

At the end of the day, many people want Trump back.

Ronald Reagan said it best during his reelection bid, "Are you better off today than you were four years ago?"

People could lie, but we can't really lie to ourselves. Even if you CAN set your clock 10 minutes faster to "trick yourself."

The simplest, most obvious question: "Is America better off than we were two years ago?"

When you find the honest answer in both your mind and your heart, then you will know and tell the future. Just don't blurt it out to your fellow movie-goers.

The Rising Wave Of Citizen Podcasters

T S U N

by WriteSide Blonde

Though some still delegate what songs make it on their road trip playlist, others fill their headspace with a fresh kind of news and entertainment while on commutes, podcasts.

I remember when I heard about this idea about 20 years ago, back when mp3 players were making their debut. We are so used to the polished sort of information, the kind that is sternly shared from behind business attire. Back then, the concept of normal people commanding the airwaves to share their knowledge with the world did not seem like the kind of idea that would be successful long term. Boy was I wrong.

Running a search today on any streaming platform will bring you thousands of online podcast options, ranging from topics like motivational business tips, murder mystery stories, ghost tales, to learning how to speak another language. Want to learn German? French? Spanish? Japanese? Italian? _____ (fill in the blank), You get the point. The options seem endless! Everyone (and their cats and dogs) has a podcast these days. The notion that anyone can be a motivational speaker, even if said person has no experience in leading anything other than people to his or her podcast, is a familiar one. Despite this, creators have achieved success from simply sharing what they know.

We are a busy bunch. People like to multitask. Why not learn how to speak French while driving to work or folding laundry. In laws coming over this weekend? Learn how to cook a gourmet meal over your lunch break. When you take our busy lifestyles into account, the convenience of listening while completing other tasks, is priceless. Most offer the option to listen or watch if you find the time.

Distrust for the mainstream media has led new viewers away from the tried and oftentimes not-so-true, to the raw, authentic type of news as well. When stories we were told on evening news did not match up with what Citizen Journalists were discovering, credibility was instantly on the chopping block. Gone are the days of blindly trusting corporate media, and that is not a terrible thing. You know the saying. Fool me once, shame on you. Fool me twice, shame on me.

The entire model of information dispersing has shifted. Americans are the news now. Through podcasts and other online mediums, we can share what is happening in real time easily from our smart phones.

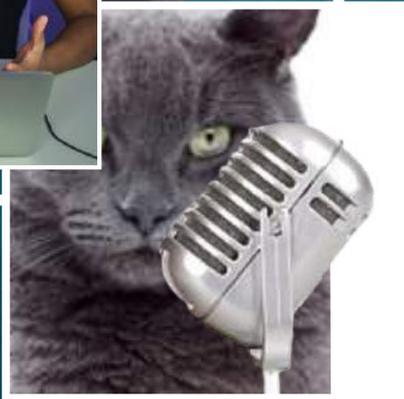

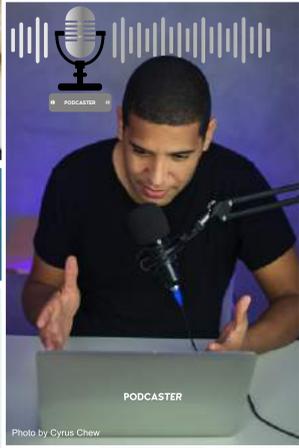

Though its clear most pertinent topics have a wide array of coverage, with the ever-changing landscape of technology and the way business is done now more will inevitably emerge.

Come to think of it, I did not see a podcast that covered how to draft an article about podcasts. Maybe ... I should start one. Seems like the kind of idea that would be successful long term.

DISCOVER FLORIDA, LIKE NEVER BEFORE

As the world opens to the endless possibility of travel, exotic international destinations are surely making their way onto your bucket list. But, before you pack your passport, dare to discover what is right in front of you, stateside.

by Michele Marin

It would be easy to dismiss Florida as a cliché travel destination. To do so would be missing a remarkable journey through the often overlooked gems that make the Sunshine State what it is. Beyond obvious theme parks and tourist attractions lie off the beaten path adventures, rich history, and avant-garde glam that will leave even the most seasoned traveler returning for more. So, I would be remiss not to share what locals know and love about this enthralling state.

It only makes sense to begin your sojourn at the inception of our country, St. Augustine. A short forty miles from Jacksonville Airport takes you to our Nation's Oldest City. Founded by Spanish admiral Pedro Menéndez de Avilés over four hundred years ago, St. Augustine is a paradox of European flavor and good ole Southern charm. To truly immerse yourself in the romance and history of the quaint city, stay at The Collector. Time seems to stand still amid leisurely strolls along brick-paved streets, horse-drawn carriage rides, and sunset sails along the peaceful Intracoastal. History comes alive around every corner – quite literally. Visit Castillo de San Marcos Fortress for historical reenactments and daily cannon firings. Even gourmands of the group will be pleasantly surprised by St. Augustine's ever evolving foodie scene. For a taste of innovative Southern fare sourced from local growers.

Check out The Floridian.

When you are ready to trade nostalgia for nature, head just two hours south to the Space Coast. This is the 'real' Florida. It does not take an ecologist to fall in love with Mother Nature's ineffable display of natural beauty, from the Canaveral National Seashore to the St. Johns River. Ranked eleventh in the world for Eco-tourism destinations, the Space Coast is home to an abundance of rare and endangered wildlife and plants. You will be able to take part in adventures as unique as the coastal wetlands. For an indescribable experience, book a night paddle or kayaking trip along the Indian River Lagoon. The lagoon is one of the only places in the world that you will find bioluminescent waters. Spot bottlenose dolphins, manatees, and fish as planktons cast a magical glow in the waters. For an exhilarating look into the marshes and swamps along the St. Johns River, venture out on an airboat ride. Get an up-close look at gators, birds, and the vast flora that call these waters their home. If you want to stay and play along the Space Coast for a few days, The Casa Coquina Del Mar is a hidden gem. If you are looking for a little more action, Orlando is just an hour away.

"a visit to Key West is an undeniable rite of passage."

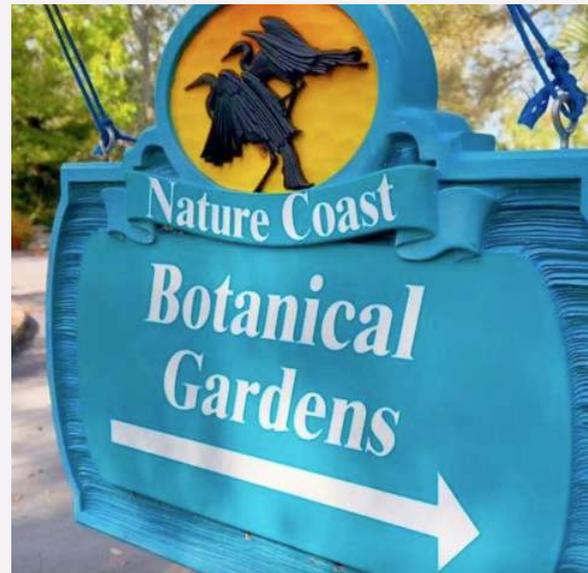

You can make the next destination an extension of this vacation or use it as another reason to come back to the Sunshine State. Either way, Little Torch Key is one of by far one of the most breathtaking places you will ever visit. It is quite a drive from Central Florida, but you will not regret making the road trip. For those who are more about the destination than the journey, take a short flight from Orlando to Miami. From there, rent a car and drive the beautiful panoramic Overseas Highway. Just past the twenty eighth mile marker of the Overseas Highway, or U.S. Route 1, lies a dream-worthy escape rivaling any exotic island locale. The Florida Keys are aptly called America's Caribbean for a reason, but the real gem of the Conch Republic is a secluded slice of heaven only accessible by private yacht or seaplane. Little Palm Island Resort & Spa is America's only exclusive island resort.

A place where the lines between crystal blue waters seamlessly blur onto your private deck and outdoor soaking tub. Stay under thatched roofs amid swaying palms and ocean breezes that leave you wondering if you are in French Polynesia rather than Florida. Try, however, to pull yourself away from the resort's Balinese-style beauty, because there is an alluring archipelago just waiting to be discovered. And do try not to miss Dry Tortugas, one of America's most remote national parks, a bucket-list destination in and of itself.

As much as I am highlighting low-key destinations, a visit to Key West is an undeniable rite of passage. Dare I say, Key West is much more than the sand in your toes, drink in your hand island, five o'clock somewhere adage. Don't believe me? Visit Key West Tropical Forest and Botanical Garden, the only frost-free, subtropical, natural conservation habitat, native Plant botanical garden in the continental United States.

Within the Gardens lies a lesser-known secret – an ode to Cuban's long-standing relationship with the Florida Keys – The Chug Exhibit. A collection of preserved migrant boats used by Cubans during the crossings, The Chug exhibit is the only known collection of this size anywhere. It is humbling to think of the vast waters crossed in these humble vessels. Waters that hold a world of opportunity.

Take for instance The Florida Reef – the only living coral barrier reef in the United States. And, for anglers that means stumbling upon one of the most unique fishing environments in the world. Edible catches are possible at any time of the year. To balance recreation and preservation, so many anglers catch and release. Regardless of your preference, with the depths of the Atlantic on one side and the Gulf of Mexico on the other, the options are endless. Not just in the Florida Keys or for fishing but for vibrant culture, deep roots into our country, and a diverse natural wonderland. That is what makes Florida anything but a cliché tourist destination. Hidden among towering Live Oaks or tucked along a remote stretch of beach, you will find your own magic. You just need to look a little closer at what is right there.

Read The Federalist Papers

<https://guides.loc.gov/federalist-papers/full-text>

James Madison, America's fourth President (1809-1817), made a major contribution to the ratification of the Constitution by writing The Federalist Papers, along with Alexander Hamilton and John Jay. In later years, he was referred to as the "Father of the Constitution."

The 85 essays succeeded by helping to persuade doubtful New Yorkers to ratify the Constitution. Today, The Federalist Papers helps us to more clearly understand what the writers of the Constitution had in mind when they drafted that amazing document 200 years ago.

Five basic themes can be discerned from the words of Hamilton, Madison, and Jay: federalism, checks and balances, separated powers, pluralism, and representation.

Who Is In Your Market?

Targeting Your Customers

A market is a group of people who have enough in common with each other that you can establish a reputation among them.

by Jim Cathcart

Think of marketing as if your target audience were inside a circle.

Then perform four steps:

1. Isolate the market. Put a name of your target audience inside a circle.
2. Surround the market. Start showing up everywhere they look in blogs, podcasts, events, conventions, expositions.
3. Penetrate the market. Get one customer, even a tiny one, in this group. Get inside the circle by having a client who can help you know the market better.
4. Permeate the market. Build referrals from one to the next until everyone in that market knows about you and what you can do for them.

There are three types of markets.

Your Natural Market – People you already have access to.

A natural market is one you don't have to go looking for. It's the people you know and know about. These can be geographic: the people near your shop, near your home, from your school or club; or they can be affiliations: people in your professional association, your church, or any group where you are already connected. This also includes your friends, neighbors and family members. Here is a compelling question: How many of the people who you know well; family, close friends, etc., could accurately describe what it is that you do for a living? Chances are good that most of them don't really know. They might know your title or place of work but it's doubtful they could accurately describe how much you can help your customers and in what ways. That is an opportunity just waiting to be fulfilled.

YOUR Ideal Market – People you dream of getting business from.

Think of your perfect customers. Who would that be? I mean truly the perfect, dream customers that you would awaken each day eager to work with. Forget what's realistic, just write a description of your dream customers. It could be movie stars, race drivers, wealthy people, Olympic athletes, sports icons, grandparents, CPAs, police officers, or motorcycle enthusiasts. You get to choose. Once you isolate them by writing them down, you can begin to find a path to serving them. But nothing happens until you start the process. Dream it, write it, achieve it.

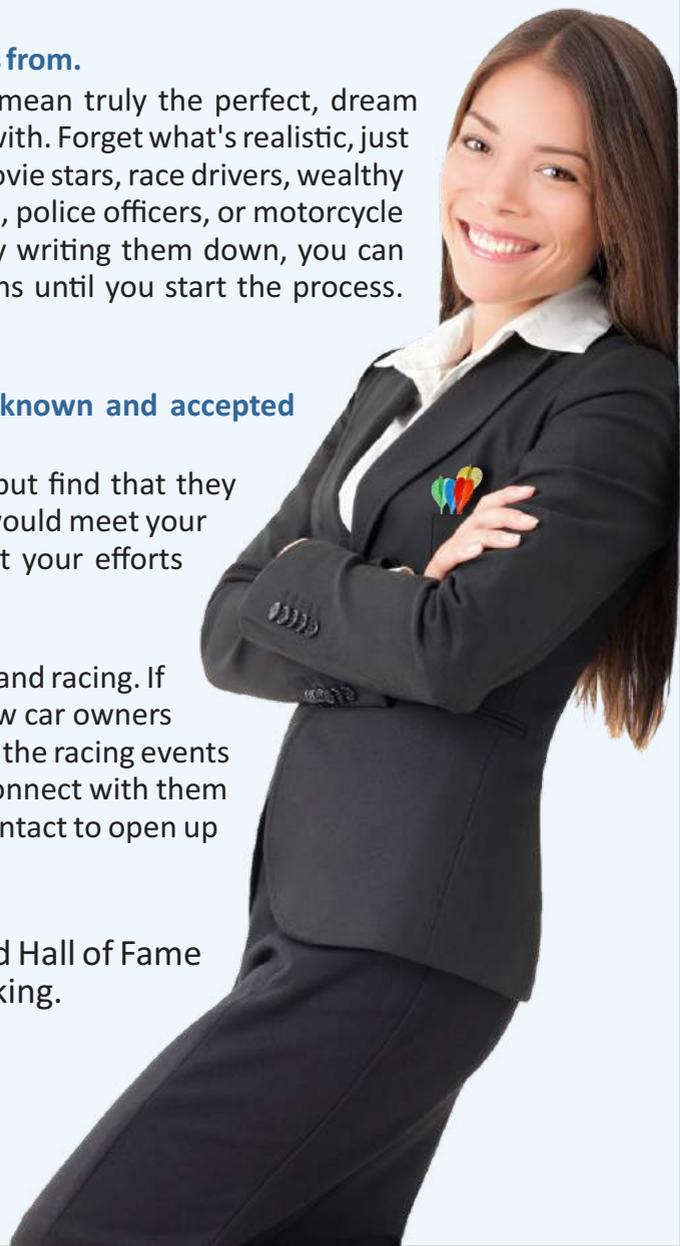

YOUR Chosen Market – People you intend to become known and accepted among.

You might have a natural market among schoolteachers but find that they don't have big enough needs or frequency of buying that would meet your goals. So, instead of focusing on teachers, you can direct your efforts toward the best opportunities.

You might have an auto repair shop and a love of car shows and racing. If so, maybe you could cultivate a base of clients among show car owners and collectors. Perhaps you could meet the pros at some of the racing events you attend and provide a service to them. The more you connect with them the more contacts you make. And it only takes one good contact to open up an entire market to you.

We need look no further than the smartphone in our hands, that infamous “dark glass” referred to in 1 Corinthians 13:12. News, politics, even entertainment are all drenched in an antiseptic ointment that reveals citizens are rousing from something of a 'pacifistic cat-nap'.

by Henry Archer

We are opening our eyes to find that our nation's front door has been beaten in by an intruder who desires complete submission to ideas of hate, fear, and of blind obedience. This thief looks to rob the very jewels from our country's crown while claiming that any resistance we even consider offering is intolerance, bigotry and extremism. They seek to convince us that good is evil and evil is good. The enemy is prowling like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour. But “let not your heart be troubled” ... while there is breath, there is hope!

The United States is returning to the surface of a deep and dark sea. Lucidity and rational thought are brightening on the horizon like a thundering sunrise in the form of patriots who dare to hoist a flag of distress, to muster a force the planet has not experienced since the legendary Boston Tea Party. Friends, let there be no doubt that a Spirit greater than any weapon formed up against us is stirring once again, in the hearts and heads of these happy few. One such warrior is Clay Clark, founder and leader of the Reawaken America Tour. Picking up immeasurable steam, and passengers as they rocket across our nation, Clay and members of the tour look to shine a disinfectant light on the ideas and individuals that ceaselessly toil to ruin all that is good and beautiful.

Clay Clark, entrepreneur and former mayoral candidate of Tulsa, OK is sick of turning the other cheek. When he dared to question the narrative of the left and fight against the draconian Covid-19 mandates in his fair city, Mr. Clark realized just how strong the thrall was that held his fellow citizens. Taking a stand after deciding he could not tolerate anymore; he began what is now known as the Reawaken America Tour in an effort to draw together the like-minded people who saw the obvious fallacies in the dictates of a regime that stresses compulsion and subservience, all while lauding that old chestnut of ... for the 'Greater Good'.

What began as a call to logic over ridiculous mask mandates in the city of Tulsa has transformed into something of a prairie fire sweeping across the country, rousing the faithful to a return of sense and sensibilities. This political protest movement aims to reassure the public, American Exceptionalism is NOT a curse word, but rather something to be espoused and encouraged. The structure of our Union is bending under the weight of degeneracy and filth, and Clay hopes, with the aid of his fellow Americans, this tour will begin to bolster the foundation of our beautiful home. After all, I seem to remember somebody or another mentioning what happens to a house divided against itself ...

We are witnessing in real-time a level of hypocrisy the likes of which have only been dreamt of by turn-of-the-century authors who pen dystopian tales of constant surveillance and blatant gaslighting. Any mention of truth is branded misinformation, disinformation, or outright conspiracy theory. For example, Clay has made reference to the Great Reset in some of his speeches, which is an effort by the 'specials' to take advantage of the Covid crisis for furthering their choke-hold on the earth's population. As soon as the words left his lips, so-called 'credible' media outlets like the Gates funded National Public Radio made short work of branding the tour a 'mix of religion, politics and conspiracy theories. Never mind that a cursory search of Amazon.com reveals the existence of a book LITERALLY TITLED 'Covid 19: The Great Reset' authored by none other than founder of the World Economic Forum and human/snapping turtle hybrid Klaus Schwab.

wildfire, it has ignited a nation of patriots, ablaze with righteous anger and renewed passion to see those core and basic tenets of the U.S.A. unearthed after being buried for so long by the enemies of liberty. Mr. Clark knows the time has come to scrape the barnacles from the hull of our great vessel and return to the course God has charted for our ship. Clark's Reawaken America tour continues to serve as a lighthouse, a rallying point offering renewal, revival and succor to the AMERICAN who longs for nothing more than decency and civility. Whatever happened to 'agree to disagree'? Someone thinks that's a dirty word ... but Clay knows otherwise.

The tour has convened all across the country, in temples and churches, in arenas and conference centers, in theatres and speedways, and most importantly in The hearts and minds of those who have for so long desperately cried out with hunger or that which is right and good. In addition to everyday salt-of-the-earth citizenry, Clay's efforts have attracted people with a substantial voice in the world who use their platforms to reach those who might not otherwise receive news of this movement. Such personalities like comedian Jim Brewer, a self-confessed family man, and devotee of the Lord, have taken the opportunity to take the stage at tour stops in an effort to let the country know that there is a small but mighty minority in entertainment who are proud to stand up with those of us who seek to shun the wicked and seek the good. CEO's like Patrick Byrne and Mike Lindell, sports stars such as Jonathan Isaac and Anna Khait, and even high-profile politician Alan Keyes are among the many personalities who have sought to prove to True Patriots that they are not alone in a sea of Democratic skullduggery.

Of course, it is not all easy. The tour has been beset from all sides since day one by agents of the enemy, destroyers of beauty, weak-minded fools who are led by the evil one, desperate for whomever they can drag down along with them on their way to torment. They have been branded conspiracy theorists, hate-mongers, and villains by some of the loudest and most available mouthpieces in our country.

But be not afraid, for our redemption draweth nigh. Rest not your faith in Clay Clark. Not in me, nor Roger Stone, nor GEORGE Magazine, neither in the GOP, Alex Jones, Steven Crowder, Donald Trump, or any other soul on earth. Rest your faith in the Almighty Lord God of Hosts, the Great I AM, the One Above All, to rescue our nation. With His Aid and Providence to guide His people like those mentioned above, we will move the mountain, we will see their swords beaten into plowshares, and we will reclaim this country ... not for us, BUT FOR HIM. Things are now in motion that cannot be undone.

WE HELP BUSINESS-TO-BUSINESS COMPANIES GROW SALES.

If you don't think we should have a chat, answer the following questions honestly:

- ✓ Does every single one of your current customers know about all your products and/or services, and why they should be buying them from you?
- ✓ What percentage of your prospects and customers have heard from your salesperson—in a meaningful way—within the past four weeks? Is there a next touch scheduled?
- ✓ What percentage of relationships within your database have either gone dormant or are heading well down that path?
- ✓ Do your contacts receive “one-size-fits-all” marketing messages, or do you have a way to customize and deliver preference-specific messages on behalf of your reps (to build a strong personal brand)?
- ✓ Have you made time to provide your reps with consistent, personal, one-on-one coaching and mentoring?
- ✓ Do your reps know how to identify and adapt to all four of the buying styles?

If your answers created a nagging doubt in your mind, let's talk and discuss solutions.

Selling with Style: “The Platinum Rule®” is Key

By Scott Zimmerman, Business Editor

We all know someone who is as nice as can be—yet when you see them approaching, you know the conversation will be like nails screeching on a chalkboard for you. Unless you learn the skill of adapting to the observable behavior of others, you are that person for other people; they're just too nice to tell you. In this article, I will expose you to Dr. Tony Alessandra's The Platinum Rule®, which states, “Do unto others as they would have you do unto them,” or, “Treat people the way they like to be treated.”

The Platinum Rule is a more modern, sensitive version of The Golden Rule, which teaches us to “Do unto others as we would want done to ourselves.” However, not everyone wants or likes to be treated the way that we do! Some people enjoy slow, warm, friendly conversations, while others prefer conversations that stay on topic, stick to facts, and aren't emotionally driven at all.

To learn how to master adaptability, the full version of this article can be found at: TinyURL.com/yjmzta5n or send me an email and I'll send you a complimentary copy of the award winning book “The Platinum Rule for DISC Sales Mastery”: Scott@CyranoService.com

To determine how another person likes to be treated, you only need to pay attention to two dimensions of their observable behaviors. One is the speed with which they talk, walk, and even eat. The second is the degree of warmth (or lack thereof) that they exhibit when they're around you. I like to picture a dashboard on someone's forehead during our conversation.

Adapting to another person's observable behaviors provides two benefits: it reduces interpersonal tension while increasing levels of trust. Can you imagine the advantage a professional salesperson would have if they could accurately predict both when and how their customer would be comfortable making their buying decision? As the only salesperson for my own business, I enjoyed a 450% increase in my sales within the first ninety days of applying The Platinum Rule with my own clients.

With Guarded people, I stick to facts, business and avoid feelings. They like short, focused conversations. With Open folks, I share stories and feelings; I also allow for longer chats. Direct people make quick decisions, so I speed up the conversation, avoid details, and ask what they'd like to do next. Indirect people need both time and space to think things through, so I offer them both, provide plenty of details, and slow down my rate of speech. In closing, mastering the art of adaptability will not only make you a better salesperson, but will improve every relationship in your personal life as well. By nature, I've never considered myself a great “people person.” However, by mastering just this one skill, I've noticed that now people seem to really enjoy their conversations with me. And the best part is that it's not manipulative—it's simply being considerate of how the other person likes to be treated. Again, visit TinyURL.com/yjmzta5n for a detailed version of this concept or send me an email requesting a free copy of the book.

THE MOCKINGBIRD MEDIA

Breaking The Chains From

Mockingbird

Mockingbird: any of several songbirds of the New World family "Mimidae." The common, or northern, mockingbird is well known as a mimic: it has been known to imitate the songs of 20 or more species within 10 minutes.

A beautiful newscaster brushes her dark, shoulder length hair. She sits at her make up table in the studio with lights beaming onto her face, her gaze into the mirror. Set neatly in front of her is a collection of makeup brushes. She clutches one and gently pulls her hair back to apply powder to her face. Once finished, she confidently walks to the news desk, her notes prepared and waiting for her as she takes her seat. She exchanges a few effronteries with her colleagues and the countdown begins. 5...she checks that her Mic. is secure. 4...her hands find her hair and smooth out the leftover fly-aways. 3...she wipes the corners of her mouth and any excess lipstick away. 2...she sits up straight, her piercing stare finds its way to the camera. 1...it's Showtime!

She boldly reads from the Teleprompter in her most assertive camera-ready voice. On the other side of the screen is a working mother half listening, feverishly making a lunch for her kid who hates the school lunch that day, fish sticks. It's a construction worker watching from his brief morning stop at the coffee shop before heading to the job site. It's the businessmen and women during the daily commute to the office. It's you. It's me.

The news is our sense of truth, our sense of reality. In an instant, what we hear on the news can evoke feelings of pride, happiness, or excitement. But it can just as easily fill us with life changing fear resulting in a societal shift, in what feels like our whole existence. If an entity wanted to take over a country, it wouldn't be hard, knowing the impact of the information shared by the news and its effect on a population. "Information...knowledge is power. If you can control the information, you can control people." Author Tom Clancy has said.

Operation Mockingbird was a fully implemented CIA program to spread disinformation to the AMERICAN people through all forms of media.

CIA Director William Colby

The information can be modified easily now too. What once was a legitimate top level news report or a homemade video created by a concerned citizen can be scrubbed in a matter of minutes online. This blatant censorship leaves many to wonder if what they just observed with their own eyes was nothing more than an unchecked imagination. Witnesses are made to look insane. Researchers run short on sources of truth. "Fact checkers" on social media sites, funded largely by special interest groups, have become prominent and corroborate whatever reality is being pushed that week.

by Writeside Blonde

Every day, from what seems like everywhere, we are inundated with "news." Yet despite all the information, no one has been able to come to any sensible conclusion. It seems two very different realities have emerged depending on what side of the political fence you stand. As a result, families have been torn apart and once close friends have become strangers. Was this done by design? Could it be this confusion was propagated by an agency within our own country? It's not as far-fetched as it might seem. After all, it was William Casey, the Central Intelligence Agency director from 1981-1987, who stated in 1981, "We'll know our disinformation program is complete when everything the American public believes is false." And it was the Inaugural CIA director, William Colby, who asserted the purpose of the CIA's Project Mockingbird was to spread disinformation through the media in America, which included television, newspapers, as well as magazines.

"The CIA even ran a formal training program in the 1950s to teach its agents to be journalists," Carl Bernstein, an American journalist well-studied on the CIA's relationship with media, wrote in a 1977 Rolling Stones article.

To better understand the organization, it's necessary to revisit its inception. During World War II, a spy organization known as the Office of Strategic Services was created and served as the precursor for the CIA. Once the war was over, President Harry Truman signed the National Security Act of 1947, officially forming the Central Intelligence Agency. The purpose of the CIA, the public was told, "was to fight communism in the world's shadows and back alleys, from Bangkok to Berlin."

(George Magazine, "The CIA - 50 Years of Success, Scandals, and Sabotage," James Risen, October 1997) Behind closed doors, however, was a different story. Many have heard the whispers of CIA corruption throughout the years. Though shrouded in secrecy, Americans seem to have a clear assessment of the agency, manufactured from what they've seen on TV or heard in the movies. Much less of the population would be aware of two programs carried out in the wake of WWII, created in conjunction with the birth of the CIA. Operation Paperclip and Operation Mockingbird. Two programs connected surreptitiously. Operation Paperclip's mission was to covertly aid in the assimilation and protect the identities of many top Nazi officials after WWII, an estimated 55,000 of them. These Nazis were not only allowed to enter the United States in droves, but were integrated comfortably into our society.

Operation Mockingbird's mission? To inject disinformation into American media outlets without the public finding out. To start the program, the CIA used approximately 400 of these new AMERICAN (Nazi) "citizens" to carry out the initial stages of Mockingbird. For more than 7 decades, Americans have been subject to CIA influence in our media, despite its repeated ability to walk back accusations of the stealthy connection in the name of maintaining secrecy.

Breaking The Chains From Mockingbird

The CIA's justification for spreading disinformation may have initially been in the name of safety, like most freedom-weakening programs. It's easy to sell evil when it's packaged as necessary for the country's well-being. That argument, however, should have been null and void upon the USSR, and thereby the "Red Scare," being dissolved. Yet, the CIA continued its connection to the media well after that and even expanded on it in the case of Hollywood (more on this in future issues).

And one might suggest the journalists were merely an insurance policy for the CIA, a way to quickly sweep up any brewing negativity about the agency and brush it under the rug before major reputational damage. Considering the amount of journalists on the CIA payroll from all branches of media, which was estimated at one point to be around 400 on the low end, one has to ask, "Did the CIA really need that many journalists just for damage control?" Or was there, perhaps, more at play all along?

It was Adolf Hitler's former bodyguard, Otto Skorzeny, who stated on his deathbed, "What we are taught about history in American schools is not history, but a fairy tale. Better yet, it is propaganda designed to hoodwink an unsuspecting society about its true heritage and the treasonous acts and sabotage that were conceived in order to bring about a New World Order. You are about to learn the real identities of those who have infiltrated your nation on behalf of secret societies intent on bringing about the total slavery of mankind."

Subversion is the process by which enemies infiltrate a country with the goal of slowly changing its culture, weakening it over time, to the point when it is unrecognizable. The process is done by inserting anti-American propaganda and as a result, Americans begin to despise their own heritage. Divided, they question their history. Ideas that once seemed preposterous become mainstream, not in the name of social justice like the subverters advertise, no. It is done in the name of destabilizing the very fabric holding the country together.

The quickest and easiest way to subvert a country is by gaining control of the media and controlling what citizens hear on the radio, see on television, and read in the newspapers.

Ideological subversion or psychological warfare changes the perception of reality to such an extent that despite the abundance of information, no one is able to come to sensible conclusions in the interests of defending themselves, their families, their community and their country.

Yuri Bezmenov, Ex-KGB, 1984

In 1961, President KENNEDY said, "For we are opposed around the world by a monolithic and ruthless conspiracy that relies primarily on covert means for expanding its sphere of influence, on infiltration instead of invasion, on subversion instead of elections, on intimidation instead of free choice, on guerillas by night instead of armies by day. It is a system which has conscripted vast human and material resources into the building of a tightly knit, highly efficient machine that combines military, diplomatic, intelligence, economic, scientific, and political operations. Its preparations are concealed, not published. Its mistakes are buried, not headlined. Its dissenters are silenced, not praised. No expenditure is questioned, no rumor is printed, no secret is revealed."

The speech addressed the media's responsibility to ensure professionalism, to maintain our national security by not revealing secrets that would give our enemies the upper hand. But it accomplished something else. It laid out, in great detail, the enemy we are up against. We've heard the rebuttal "but if that were true, wouldn't it be in the news?" Given what we now know of the history of subversion, the CIA, and the cooperation of the media, the answer to the aforementioned question is a resounding no. Our media is, and has been for some time, complicit.

It's generally human nature to side with whatever information is first fed to us. A wise man once stated, "It's easier to fool someone than to convince them they were fooled." Therefore, when the media tells us the New World Order that was planned for us is nothing more than a conspiracy theory, it is even more difficult to convince people that it is, in fact, real. Perhaps you, the reader of this article, have found yourself disagreeing, though you have no other reason for disagreeing other than what you heard on the news. This confusion is exactly what the media and all the puppeteers (subverters) behind it want.

Another tactic used frequently is done by accusing a target of exactly what those on the offense are engaged in. Want to ensure no one finds out about YOUR propaganda program? Accuse the other side of releasing propaganda. Need to make sure no one finds out YOUR game plan? Circulate an article stating exactly what YOUR game plan is, only have the roles reversed. By the time anyone catches on to the truth, the damage has been done, the grave has been dug. One only needs to look back at the last two years of media releases to see this phenomenon, the inaccuracies. They are countless.

BREAKING THE WORLDWIDE MOCKINGBIRD MEDIA

At George, we seek to expose these inaccuracies, to paint the true picture no matter what political side was “right” or “wrong.” Political parties do not matter anymore for good and evil existed in both parties.

Americans are yearning for the truth and we will get the truth. We will come together again, and we will be united once more. A mockingbird imitates other birds. Our mockingbird media has been mimicking one another, singing a reused melody that’s out of tune with Americans, our culture, and our foundation.

It’s time to break the chain of bondage and the first link we must liberate from is the propaganda machine known as the mainstream “mockingbird” media.

“Without debate, without criticism, no Administration and no country can succeed, and no Republic can survive.”

FAITH MONUMENT

by Sheila Holm

The monument is based upon FAITH in the heavenly Father and the Bible. That is why FAITH is at the top of the monument, pointing to heaven and holding the Bible. The Pilgrims designed and paid for the Faith Monument.

by Sheila Holm

With FAITH, the four pillars of the Faith Monument are: MORALITY, LAW, EDUCATION and LIBERTY. The four basic pillars are identified and explained to help us learn how to live our daily life in truth, learning how to obtain and retain liberty and freedom in AMERICA.

The pillars are the basis of the scripture: New King James version, Proverbs 22:6. Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it. The Pilgrims set this plan in motion by banning all pagan feasts and festivals which were celebrated in Europe. They lived under tyranny which became worse generation by generation.

The 'American Experiment' is the term used often because the Pilgrim plan was not passed on generation to generation. The Pilgrims hoped future generations in America would remain separate and set apart from the world and not align with the world and allow evil to enter in and create tyranny in America to the point it would overtake AMERICA.

Their hope was for the people in America to learn the truth and live in truth regarding MORALITY, LAW, EDUCATION and LIBERTY per the Bible so the future generations would be able to retain Liberty and Freedom on the land. Their passion was evident in everything they did, from establishing colonies to writing state constitutions.

The Pilgrim plan was a 500-year plan. It was developed by the Pilgrims who knew how powerful it was for them to be able to read a bible in English. The translation did not happen until William Tyndale translated the bible and smuggled copies to England in 1535.

Often, I am asked: "Where is the 500 year Pilgrim plan 'written down'?"

The answer is easy: The Pilgrim Plan is revealed by their design and descriptions on the granite Faith Monument. It is a simplified plan to help us know how to obtain and retain Liberty and Freedom. The Faith Monument was not erected until 1889. The title which appears on the front of the monument confirms the title was changed to A National Monument to the Forefathers, Erected by a Grateful People. Nobody was credited with providing the monument, a monument which is hidden from the people and even the main streets in Plymouth, Massachusetts.

The Pilgrim Society paid for the monument. The Pilgrims designed the monument. The Pilgrim Society paid for the monument. The Pilgrims identified FAITH as the title of the monument. The Pilgrims are not mentioned and their efforts are not identified on the monument.

Governor William Bradford's wife fell overboard and drowned in quiet water after the Mayflower anchored in Cape Cod, a short distance from Plymouth. He continued on and became an amazing leader of the Pilgrims and the Colony. Many of the Pilgrims traveled without their family members. More than half of the people on the Mayflower, the Pilgrims, business men and crew, died during the first winter. The Faith Monument confirms the commitment of the Pilgrims and their desire for America to be a land where people would be able to live free from tyranny, obtain and retain Liberty and Freedom on the land for their generation and future generations.

In future editions of George, the four pillars of the Faith Monument will be shared, pillar by pillar along with each of the sections of the monument between the pillars. Additional information is available in my books, especially in my For The Sake Of AMERICA

I-V book series available on my web site: <https://hisbest.org>, Amazon.com and Barnes & Noble.

Mainstream Media:

RAISES MORE QUESTIONS THAN PROVIDES ANSWERS

Mainstream Media:

It's very, very troubling to discover that nearly everything I've ever watched, read, or heard from the news media—during my entire six decades of existence—has pretty much been lies fabricated by my own government.

by Scott Zimmerman

I've been hosting weekly zoom meetings with a group of highly intelligent participants. These zoom meetings last for hours and cover a variety of topics and current issues. I can freely say this group is comprised of the smartest people I've ever met. Our group of about 20 consists of a rocket scientist (seriously), a bio physicist, entrepreneurs, and a slew of C-level executives. One of our main topics of interest is the marked difference between the stories that mainstream media (MSM) reports and what our research actually uncovers. Honest reflection regarding the accuracy of reporting leaves us with far more questions than answers. In this article, I will share MSM stories from the past six years and contrast them against real research by a group of citizens who have no agendas, no financial gains, and no conflicts of interest. Considering the abundance of deception and disinformation transmitted these days, my goal is to help get you to ask yourself good questions and arrive at your own conclusions, instead of having "facts" being spoon-fed to you by others.

Elsewhere within this issue is a separate article that does a great job of exposing "Operation Mockingbird"; a long-standing CIA program working in conjunction with the MSM to create false narratives.

The first question most commonly raised by my research group was, "How is it possible for all of MSM to get almost every single story wrong for six full years?" We discussed the MSM's relentless push regarding Ukraine collusion. Then President Trump was being attacked for applying pressure to Zelensky to supposedly manufacture evidence of the Biden family's true relationships with Ukraine. This is the story we were sold, but we kept digging for more answers.

One of the most striking videos we found was President Biden freely admitting, on camera, that he threatened to withhold a billion dollars of aid to Ukraine if Prosecutor General, Viktor Shokin, was not fired and replaced. "Why is that any business of Joe Biden?" we wondered. It turned out that Mr. Shokin was investigating Burisma Group, a huge energy company with addresses listed in both Cyprus and their capital, Kyiv. Shokin was honing in on the odd relationship between the company and one of their Board Members, Hunter Biden.

Here is the actual video (Important note: Mr. Biden was the sitting Vice President of the United States at the time of his accidental confession): <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UXA--dj2-CY>

We also learned that Hunter was being paid more than $80,000 a month. Eventually, some of the MSM were forced to report it but tried to bury the story, especially leading up to the 2020 Presidential election.

I recall watching a very important press conference about an hour prior to the final Presidential debate between Mr. Biden and President Trump.

A gentleman named Tony Bubolinski shared that he was business partners with both Hunter and his uncle, James Biden. Bubolinski wanted to reveal hard evidence of the Bidens' under-the-table gains in dealings with foreign countries, and he specifically named China. He also stated that he had proof of Joe Biden's knowledge (and blessing) of their illegal business transactions. Mr. Bubolinski presented three cell phones and shared that all the hard evidence of the Biden family colluding with the Chinese government from 2015 to 2018 was obtained within these phones. He specifically disclosed voicemails, emails, texts, private messages, along with every other action that would be required to prove the crimes committed by the Biden family.

More interesting to our group of researchers is that Mr. Bubolinski turned the phones over to the FBI and received assurances that the bureau would follow up with him within a week, but he never heard back from them to this day. Bubolinski recently shared this information in an interview with Tucker Carlson. The video of the press conference disappeared from the MSM along with the evidence given to the FBI. Poof! Gone.

Here is the actual press conference so you can judge for yourself if this man is lying or telling the truth:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aiiSq7to1QI>

Another hot topic among my research group pertains to the Biden administration's flooding Ukraine with tens of billions of our tax dollars and why his administration is playing so nicely with China. Our consensus? Follow the money! If the Bidens and other politicians were enriching themselves before the Russia/Ukraine ordeal, imagine how that is working out now that they're funneling a never-ending flow of monies that cannot be traced nor accounted for! It's ironic that more than $75BB was sent to guard Ukraine's border by the very people in Congress and the Senate who denied Trump a paltry $5BB to protect our own border. Also, ask yourself why certain Republicans got behind the funding of Ukraine's "war" so quickly.

If the FBI and the MSM were willing to bury those stories, why wouldn't they bury the world's biggest smoking gun? Hunter Biden's damning laptop. Would they need additional help in concealing it? Have a look.

Just a few weeks prior to the 2020 election, the New York Post reporter, Miranda Devine, wrote a feature article regarding the contents on a copy of Hunter's laptop. For a couple of days, it was all my group could discuss. We were most pleased that the truth had finally come out in the media, but our joy was short-lived. The New York Post's Twitter account was suspended and the story disappeared from the internet. Mine and many other large Twitter accounts were immediately shadow-banned for simply mentioning "Hunter", "Biden", or "laptop".

We agreed that the MSM was being backed into a "lose/lose" decision: Either report the hard evidence of the Biden family crimes (and cost them the election) or bury the whole enchilada story. They chose the former, not the latter. Time will tell, but if or when the evidence is revealed that MSM outlets had the evidence and hid it, they will likely face some very serious charges. Is that journalism or something much more sinister?

DECISION: Either report the hard evidence of the Biden family crimes (and cost them the election) or bury the whole enchilada story. They chose the former, not the latter. Amazingly, Miranda Devine's book was written, published, and released a full year before the media began hinting the Biden family could be in trouble. I have no dog in the hunt but will tell you that "The Laptop from Hell" is one riveting read.

So, who else had to help bury the story? The FBI, who not only failed to follow up with Mr. Bubolinski, but actually hid the laptop evidence they possessed. Recent stories are now emerging that the FBI itself approached Mark Zuckerberg, the CEO of Facebook, and told him the laptop was comprised of Russian disinformation and strongly suggested that Facebook censor all information on the subject.

Here's the article/interview of Mr. Zuckerberg admitting to the collusion with the FBI:

Before and after the 2020 election, a total of 33 of us were researching and posting our findings on Twitter, facts that opposed the MSM narrative. On January 8, 2021, just prior to Biden's inaugural address, all of our accounts got taken down together. Tens of thousands of patriotic Twitter accounts were erased in the blink of an eye. Poof! Gone.

Prior to being eradicated from the Twitter Universe, our small group had amassed a collective following of more than 1.4 million people and earned more than 1.5 billion monthly impressions on Twitter.

Simply put, a small group of unpaid citizens had gained more credibility and eyes on our words than all the other MSM organizations combined! On Twitter, we blew past the monthly views of CNN, MSNBC, ABC, CBS, and NBC collectively! It's no wonder why they wanted us silenced. It turns out that people were turning off their televisions and scouring the Internet for "real news." Many of them found us and are still eagerly searching out alternative news.

Now, nearly two years after the election, what is finally leaking into the MSM narratives? Hunter's laptop, Zuckerberg's confession about the FBI meetings and the subsequent censoring, and the real colluders with Ukraine and China. It wasn't Donald Trump. Is the size and scope of the swamp starting to boggle your mind? It took even more members of the deep state to help put a shine on the diamond called propaganda.

About the Author: Scott Zimmerman had the vision to combine his cutting-edge marketing technology with Dr. Tony Alessandra's proven sales psychology. The result was a proprietary communication platform that could automatically send customized marketing messages that matched each recipient's interests and even their personality type. Today, that platform has evolved into a done-for-you service that helps salespeople and professional service providers build—and maintain—meaningful relationships with (literally) hundreds of their clients, prospects, colleagues, and referral partners.

Please stop thinking politically. Let's have a look at MSM's misdirection from a higher vantage point, shall we? This has nothing to do with Republicans or Democrats. There are plenty of slimy rats on both sides of the aisle. Think bigger. Much, much bigger. This has to do with good versus evil. Decent citizens, worldwide, are working in teams to uncover the lies and deceptions of governments, media, big tech, and big pharma. We are now fully engaged in a war over information!

How many of you have been following the trials conducted by Special Counsel and Federal Prosecutor, John Durham? How many of you have even heard of him? If not, why? Those of us digging independently have been watching him and his team like a hawk for years. Don't be surprised at what he's exposing today and will continue to expose.

During the Michael Sussman trial, Robby Mook, former campaign manager for Hillary Clinton, admitted that she knew and approved of the leak to the MSM: falsely pinning Russian collusion on the Trump administration. She did so in the months leading up to the 2016 election against Trump.

Even CNN was forced to finally report the undeniable truth: <https://www.cnn.com/2022/05/20/politics/hillary-clinton-robbymook-fbi/index.html>

As I write this today, Mr. Durham has just launched another trial with charges filed against Igor Danchenko. Hopefully truths will begin surfacing about his affiliation with the FBI, Perkins Coie (the law firm that served as the buffer between Hillary and Christopher Steel), and a sundry of other evidence that the Clinton Express Team and the DNC, in collusion with the MSM, tried to hide from you. Michael Sussman was one of the partners of Perkins Coie and he resigned within hours of learning that the Durham team found all the evidence and was pressing charges. While Sussman was only charged with smaller crimes, the trial produced the exact outcome Mr. Durham wanted: Hillary's own campaign manager throwing her under the bus.

If you want more evidence of MSM stations colluding to share the same false narratives, watch this two-minute video of CNN desperately trying to spin a video that went viral. It proved there is no more real reporting and true journalism has died. We no longer have reporters; we have talking heads that read what is fed into their TELEPROMPTERS.

Enjoy: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aGIYU2Xznb4>

Every local reporter reading the same story—word-for-word—made the hair stand up on the back of my neck. I'll never forget the first time I saw that, and it fueled me to team up with other patriots to start digging in "hives groups". We haven't slowed down a bit in more than four years, and in future articles I will share with you our findings in other areas regarding:

- Who really owns the MSM? • Who really pays the MSM?
- Watching the New York Times and Washington Post retract false stories.
- The difference in what the "January 6th Committee" is "finding" and what Really occurred?
- Why every other commercial during the news is sponsored by Big Pharma?
- Why many people don't even know that a third skyscraper fell on 9/11?
- The obvious imbalance of the reporting of Trump's actual accomplishments versus what we were told.
- Who took out patents on the Covid vaccines years before the virus?

I hope I've shared just enough to make you curious enough to both question your own beliefs and to also start digging for your own truths/evidence. Me and my friends have been digging furiously for years, and we're never going to stop!

OUR ORWELLIAN FUTURE STARTS NOW

by Dr. Kirk Elliott

In George Orwell's book, 1984 he stated, "Big brother is watching you." He described a world where there were no secrets, where big government knew everything about you, probably more than you knew about yourself. This was written in 1949. Now, 73 years later the future that struck fear into the hearts and minds of readers is now. Privacy has become a relic of the past, and reality exists in the human mind, and nowhere else.

As humans our normalcy bias is the greatest danger to ourselves. By that I mean what? What you thought was safe and reasonable in the past is not necessarily the same in the present and the future because as the world changes, as the economy changes, as politics change, we need to change in accordance with that not just to survive, but to thrive.

We sit on the precipice of a currency change like nothing that has ever been experienced in human existence. Executive Order 14067 signed into law on March 9, 2022 moved the United States at a blazing speed into the world Orwell envision back in 1949 where under this executive order, if one plays out the potential outcomes of the inter-agency and multinational cooperation spelled out in the order, a central bank digital currency ("CBDC") allows for:

- Legal surveillance of US citizens
- Complete control of all bank accounts and purchases
- The elimination of private cash transactions

According to a speech by Dr. Pippa Malmgren at the World Government Forum in Abu Dhabi earlier this year, CBDC's provide for complete clarity of transactions and will be implemented in accordance with "programmable money." The ramifications of this are the government will be able to turn off your bank account at the touch of a button, track and record every purchase you make, and ultimately protect against money laundering and trafficking which all of us would view as a desirable outcome, but the undesirable outcome is that for political, social, or economic misalignment, your ability to buy or sell could be shut off.

About 90% of central banks globally are considering such a move to CBDC's in which there is clarity of transactions. This is not about financial freedom, but rather about the loss of freedom and complete control of our political, economic, religious, personal and health freedoms. Aldous Huxley in Brave New World stated, "A really efficient totalitarian state would be one in which the all-powerful executive of political bosses and their army of managers control a population of slaves who do not have to be coerced, because they love their servitude."

We are all about to become slaves in this brave new world, but there are solutions to investing privately in this new paradigm where you don't have to settle for surviving. You can thrive. Physical Gold and Silver offer a get out of the system investment option. Dr. Kirk Elliott is founder of Kirk Elliott PhD Private Advisors, protecting people's wealth for over 27 years.
